300 die in Italian quake

VENICE, Italy (AP) — About 300 persons were believed killed in an earthquake that jolted northeast Italy Thursday night. Strong tremors were felt in at least six other countries, causing panic among millions, but there were no reports of casualties or major damage outside of Italy.

In addition to the area of Italy rocked by the quake, there were tremors in sections of Yugoslavia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, West Germany, The Netherlands and Belgium. Hundreds of Belgians fled from high-rise apartment houses.

Italy's quake devastated dozens of towns and villages in the Tagliamento River Valley near the Yugoslav border. Major Italian cities did not suffer heavy damage or casualties.

National police headquarters in Rome said 187 bodies had been recovered in 19 towns, but several villages nestled in the foothills of the Alps were still cut off.

A police spokesman said most of the damage was in towns and villages along both sides of the Tagliamento, which flows from the eastern Alps into the Adriatic some 40 miles northeast of Venice.

Two more tremors struck the area this morning, but there were no reports of casualties or damage.

A few chimneys were knocked down in Venice and thousands rushed to the Piazza San Marco and other open spaces seeking safety, but no casualties or major damage was reported there or in other major cities.

The worst casualty toll was reported in Maiano, a town of 1,900 about four miles from the river and 11 miles from the district capital of Udine, where officials set up a command center.

Police said a series of sharp tremors killed 58, injured 300 and destroyed half the homes in Maiano. The town's mayor said the dead included a young girl crushed when a Renaissance bell tower fell.

The U.S. Air Force sent six helicopters with 10 medical officers, stretchers and other supplies from the air base at Vicenza to the quake area.

Italian army trucks carried troops into the area to begin digging through the rubble. They were joined by fire brigade vehicles and commercial bulldozers pressed into service.

The national police in Rome said the quake leveled Forgaria, a town of 4,000, and destroyed a quarter to a half of the buildings in the towns of Buia, Osoppo, San Pietro di Ragogna and Collaredo.

Interior Minister Francesco Cossiga worked through the night in Rome coordinating rescue work. Troops, police, firemen and volunteers were rushed to the disaster area from hundreds of miles away.

Authorities in Udine, a city of 90,000 about 15 miles east of the Tagliamento, ordered all doctors in the area mobilized and made urgent appeals for blood. They said damaged hospitals were unable to handle the flood of injured.

The quake collapsed dozens of bridges and sent tons of rock and earth crashing onto roads in the area.

Jobless rate steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate held steady in April at 7.5 per cent, ending five straight months of decline, the government said today.

The leveling off of the jobless rate indicated further improvement will be more difficult in the months ahead.

A bright spot in the job report was that total employment jumped by another 700,000 in April to a new high of 87.4 million, a sign of strong business growth.

However, because the number of Americans finding work nearly offset the big increase in iob seekers last month, the jobless rate was unchanged. In April, another 720,000 went looking for work, raising the size of the civilian labor force to 94.4 million.

Despite the growth in jobs, the number of unemployed totaled about 7 million last month, the Labor Department said. Although this was substantially below the recession peak of 8.3 million in May 1975, joblessness remains very high by postwar standards.

Both the unemployment rate and inflation have improved dramatically since last October, but administration officials have repeatedly warned that the dramatic gains could not be sustained.

Garrison surrender set today

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — The two-year-old battle over murder charges against Dr. Norman A. Garrison Jr., of Corinth shifted back to Missouri today.

Garrison, 34, planned to surrender to Missouri authorities. He is to be returned to Missouri to face charges which grew out of the Sept. 8, 1974, shooting and beating death of Lee Ann Garrison.

The Mississippi Supreme Court and federal district court had rejected arguments by Garrison's attorneys who sought to block his extradition.

The words ring across 200 years: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. . ."

Great words, remembered on great occasions -- and forgotten on small ones? Forgotten in day-to-day dealings with people who have not been endowed by their Creator with all that most of us have?

We do forget sometimes that it's hard to achieve liberty in a wheelchair, hard to pursue happiness on crutches. Harder, even, when the disability is not an obvious physical one -- when mental or emotional problems cloud a life, or poverty and discrimination stack the deck.

Fortunately, some of us do remember, and work to give the equality of opportunity to the handicapped that the Declaration of Independence promised to us all. One such organization is Goodwill Industries, which has been helping the handicapped toward independence since 1902, by rehabilitation and training that enable them to become useful and productive members of society.

SETTLING NATIONWIDE STRIKES

As usual the country is being subjected to a nationwide strike by a major union. And when this one in the tire industry is settled, there will be another one.

It does not take much intelligence to see that the whole process of striking and strike settlement is idiotic and barbaric. To begin with, both sides know when the existing contract will end. They have more than enough time to work out a new contract before the old one expires. But labor union leaders would have no claim to their jobs if they did not insure that strikes took place from time to time. For some strange reason, the existence of a strike is taken as proof by the rank and file that their bosses are earning their pay. Management, following equally uncivilized customs, seems to feel that it must resist the union, and must turn down all demands— at least one time. Both sides have come to feel that bargaining really can't take place unless a strike is on, and that it is less than honorable to settle a dispute swiftly and peacefully.

What makes this process so idiotic in this day and time is that neither side will be seriously hurt by the strike, and neither side will end up paying the bill. The laborer receives various forms of unemployment compensation when he is on strike. And management has long ago learned that it can pass on the new higher production costs to the customer. In short, it is the buying public which suffers from the strike, both directly and indirectly, and ends up footing the costs.

The thought that comes to mind is this. Why not a law which forces both management and labor, in the case of the major nationwide industries and nationwide labor unions, to reach a new contract before the old one expires? And if they do not, then levy a a fine on both sides of such massive proportions that both sides will get down to serious bargaining in a hurry. The fine could be levied on behalf of the public, local or general, to compensate the people for the suffering they would have to endure if the bargaining failed. This approach would not deny collective bargaining. It would just put it in a civilized framework. And above all else, it would protect the public from being the victims of the self-interest and stupidity of both management and labor.

A CONGRESS WITHIN THE CONGRESS

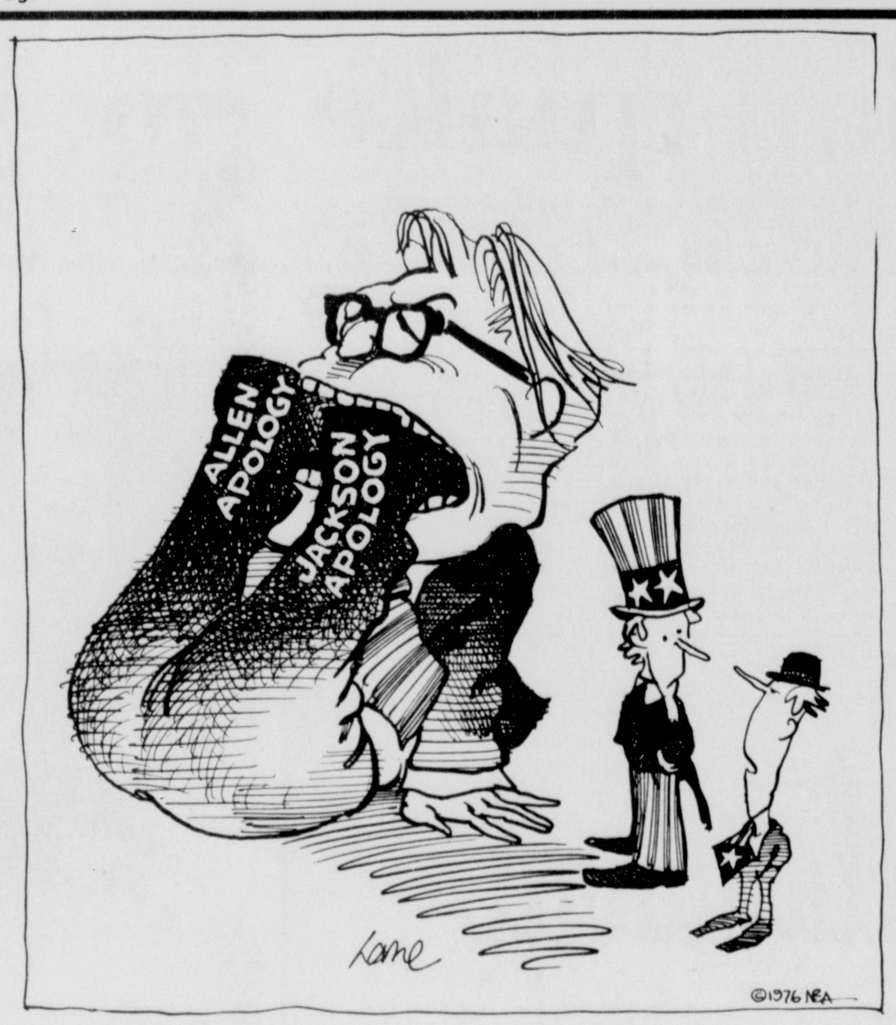
The word around Capitol Hill is that the Members were told quite bluntly by their constituents during the Christmas-New Year's holiday break that they were in error in slashing the Defense budget by almost ten billion dollars. The home-front advice, combined with the blatant communist aggression in Angola — despite detente and despite the Helsinki agreement on Security and Cooperation in Europe — apparently changed the minds of many Members. This year they seem to be facing up to the unpleasant reality of the Soviet military buildup and voting funds necessary to begin a reversal of a trend that has been running pro-USSR for more than a decade.

One recent analysis of the voting records of the 94th Congress provided a special insight into this national defense issue. It identified one group that consistently voted to cut our military strength. That group is little known in the hinterlands. It is called Members of Congress for Peace through Law. (MCPL). The American Security Council's National Security Voting Index shows that the majority of the 170 members of this organization scored between 0 and 10 on a scle of 100, while the majority of the non-MCPL members in Congress scored between 90 and 100.

In its analysis the American Security Council looked closely at the policies of the Members of Congress for Peace through Law. Here is their statement of purpose and goal: "to coordinate Congressional concern for world peace . . . and for the achievement of general and complete disarmament under enforceable world law." In one of their fliers, MCPL says: "National governments . . . have become the main threat to national security. The foreign policies of individual nations . . . (should) seek . . . a world government . . . A new internationalism would recognize an obligation on the part of the world's most powerful nation to enter into a process for the redistribution of wealth and power on a global scale."

We find ourselves wondering how these objectives square with the Constitution of the United States, which the Members of Congress are sworn to uphold and defend. We also wonder how these MCPL members justify their allegiance to MCPL with their obligations to their party platforms.

A letter to your "representatives" in the Congress, asking whether they are members of MCPL, should reveal if they are representing you and their party, or some special interest group that wants world govbernment and unilateral-disarmament for the United States. It is a letter that would be worth writing between now and November.



"That would probably silence a lesser man."

SCOOP JACKSON'S MIRACLE CURE

In medicine's dark ages, there was a common "cure" known as bleeding, which, unfortunately, probably killed more than it cured.

In theory, it was thought that the best way to rid a person's ailing body of whatever disease it was afflicted with was to drain the "soured" blood from the body, thereby removing the disease.

In practice, it didn't always work that way, and as many poor folk died from the cure, as they did the disease.

Now in Washington's own version of Alice in Wonderland, "bleeding" is making a comeback in the field of politics.

Sen. Henry Jackson ((D-Wash.), one of the hardest running of the Democratic Party's perennial presidential candidates, is suggesting "the cure" for those few states which have managed to stay ahead of the depression.

What bothers the good senator is the fact that the 19 states which have laws prohibiting compulsory unionism managed to attract six out of every ten new jobs created in the country during the past ten years, thereby maintaining a rate of unemployment about half of that in the other 31 states.

Figures don't lie: during the last 10-year period for which information is available, the 19 Right to Work states gained more than 1.6 million new manufacturing jobs; the remaining 31 states, though accounting for 70 percent of the nation's population, managed to attract only 1.3 million jobs.

These states, whose myopic legislators are driving industry away by clinging to compulsory unionism, are indeed in economic trouble.

Senator Jackson put it like this to a Philadelphia audience during a recent campaign swing: The Right to Work states, he said, "have taken jobs right out of...Pennsylvania" (and Massachusetts, and New York, and Connecticut, and Rhode Island, and Illinois, and so forth).

With all the logic of a witch doctor, the senator suggests evening things up, not by bringing good health to the states which are stagnating, but by dragging the Right to Work states down with the rest.

So instead of suggesting that Pennsylvania and other sick states adopt Right to Work laws of their own, the senator has pledged his all-out support for Big Labor's long-standing campaign to destroy that section of federal law which reaffirms the right of states to outlaw compulsory unionism. (He has been joined in this anti-Right to Work crusade by fellow campaigners Rep. Morris Udall and Jimmy Carter.)

If you can't beat 'em, Senator Jackson feels, you gotta beat 'em down.

We don't question the senator's facts. The Right to Work states have indeed been just about the only prosperous states in the nation during the past several years. When the rate of unemployment in the compulsory unionism states averaged 6.3 percent in 1974, the average rate in the Right to Work states was only 4.6 percent. While New York was losing 187,700 manufacturing jobs, Massachusetts another 43,600, and Maryland 7,300 between 1963 and 1973, every one of the 19 Right to Work states gained jobs, with eight of them gaining more than 100,000 new jobs each.

No, we don't question Senator Jackson's facts. We question his logic, his wisdom, and his sense of fair play.

Doctors stopped bleeding people many years ago. Senator Jackson should do likewise. Without freedom, the Right to Work states, most assuredly, would dry up like Pennsylvania, Washington, and all the rest

DETENTE SHOULD BE QUESTIONED

Detente-- President Ford would rather not use that word anymore-- began when President Richard Nixon was unchallenged from the right and was trying to win the approval of the intellectual left. Nixon made all the right conservative noises when he was campaigning for President in 1968, but after he was elected he turned in the opposite direction. Borrowing Henry Kissinger from Nelson Rockefeller's brain trust, he began a policy of trying to reason with the Communist superpowers.

The ideal of detente was commendable enough and might now be working if it meant the same to the Soviets as it did to us. But enough time ahs passed now to see that we and the Soviets are not speaking the aame language in mor ways than one.

Mr. Ford may call his policy "peace through strength" if he wishes to, but there has been no peace and our strength has slipped badly.

While the U.S. has been seriously negotiating with the Soviets, making a concession here and then there, the Soviets have:

"Aided the invading Communist forces in Southeast Asia, bringing aboutthe fall of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos;

--Encouraged a destructive war by Arab states against Israel;

--Supported a Marxist govertnment in Chile;

--Helped foment revolution in Portugal;

--Interfered in the internal affairs of Angola using Cuban forces in its reach for new conquest--as well as arming othe countries in Africa;

--Possibly violated provisions of he SALT I agreement;

--Reneged on compliance with human rights provisions of the Helsinki treaty;

--Expanded espionage activbities agains the U.S.

It would be interesting to have access to the CIA files, which would reveal a much longer list ot aggressive and expansionist activities by the Soviets since the beginning of detente.

Detente should be questioned. In this election year, Ronald Ragan is in the right in raising these issues; it is hoped that he will persist.

TIME BOMB
By Ray Crow

Well, here's a reason for a rhyme:
Our Congress keeps revising time.
They say we all must do our slaving
In summertime by Daylight Saving,
And then amendments they enact
By which the span is upped or backed.
This might be right for city dwellers,
But what about the country fellers—
Can Congress tell them how the dickens
To sell such change to cows and chickens?
Moreover, friends, our time is precious,
And such enactments may enmesh us
In more red tape than what we've got,
Which seems an awful lawful lot.
And, further more, if congressmen
Can mess around with time, why then,
How long before they'll say a minute
Can only have 10 seconds in it,
Or how long ere their body acts
To pass a time-consumption tax?
Yes, friends, this legislative threat
In time may prove the worst one yet.
And even though they do enact
Such laws to make the time exact,
Some bureaucrats, it's safe to say,
Will never know the time of day!

Inside Labor

New Fortune Cookies:

Heavily financed, staffed, equipped revolutionary union building Maoist activist cadres inside U. S. Labor

NEW YORK — Small Maoist Red guerrilla squads operating in the East, mocking the aging official Moscow-controlled Communist party USA also headquartered here, have infiltrated a series of major unions.

These new guerrillas, contrary to what their violence-prone bomb-planting West Coast counterparts enjoy, prefer the strategy of disruption, wildcat strike provocation and infliction of huge financial losses on industry and rank and file unionists in a drive to brutalize production and corrode the national economy.

They are of many names, these neo-revolutionaries. But of one shade. They talk and dream and organize for the day when they can launch their national Marxist- Leninist-Maoist thought national Commuist party.

Call them the October Lague, evolutionary Union or by a score of other noms de guerre, they aren't will-o'-the-wisp. Nor are they conjured up by junior G-men. They are here. They have dug deep into the American postal system, the United Mine Workers membership, he fringes of the United Rubber Workers, the feud-ripped United Steelworkers of America, and are now developing strategy for the prolongation of any strike which the United Auto Workers may call.

The Revolutionary Union (RU) is typical. Its way-out, radical cadres are made up of articulate university-educated young people. Launched in 1968 in the San Francisco Bay area, the RU was directed by an American Maoist who had jut returned from Peking. It splintered as do most radical organizations. Then it turned up in Chicago and New York. Never has it lacked for money. Big money. Heavy literature. No dearth of phones or headquarters or staff. No doubt of its Maoist philosophy. Or of its fanatical dedication to the violent overthrow of the American government. No Star Trek stuff this. It's operating today.

For several years now the Revolutionary Union, through a faction which calls itself "The Outlaws," has attempted to seize power in the New York Metro Area Postal Union of the American Postal Workers Union (AFL-CIO). Any wildcat stoppages in this region could disrupt billions of dollars in international commercial, industrial and financial transactions.

The Metro Union has been led by President Moe Biller, a sophisticated anit-Communist. He's fought the RU. Stood up strong during the days when an RU faction held an entire union meeting as hostage in the Statler Hilton. It took the riot police to rescue the membership, many of whom were beaten. Some were hurt by chairs the RU heaved at them.

Just the other day Biller ran for reelection. He polled 83 per cent of the vote. But it isn't easy to lead a union and keep a rank and file from getting high on great expectations and "entitlements" escalated by constant RU cries of "sell-out." The rank and file gets uptight. And the union leadership finds it must deliver more and more -- as waas the case in the deficit-rotting U.S. postal system.

There isn't a grievance which the RU orators overlook. Nor any area of discontent. They can be seen at "welfare" rallies. Orthey are somewhere out there now actually talking of "uniting all New York and New Jersey workers."

Can the new Marxist-Leninist-Maoist thought cadres really injure the economy? They already have in the postal system, for example.

And there is the saga of a big, tough, fist-thumping RU man, roving activist, Lewis (Skip) Delano. Back in 1973, still in his 20s, Delano, though educated and skilled, got a job as a part-time "sub" on the midnight shift in New York General Post Office. Soon he was a union shop steward. Soon he was rattling the union meetings.

Then in December 1974 he left with a female aide and turned up in the West Virginia coal fields early in 1975. By August he had a committee going. With him were two other young RU men. They shouted against the United Mine Workers leaders. They inveighed against industry. They grabbed at a small group of coaldiggers who struck early in August in protest over some minor issue.

By early September (1975) Delano and his cadres had provoked 80,000 coaldiggers into a long illegal strike. Cost: $120 million in lost bituminoius production, $22 million in lost wages and over $6.5 million in pension and welfare premiums.

Thus cut in welfare and pension payments hit directly at the health and old age security of the miners themselves. True, the mining industry pays $640 million annually into these funds. But constant strikes could hurt badly.

For example, there were some short stoppages early in February 1976 in southern Virginia and West Virginia. The walkout was called in protest against the proposed black lung bill then in Congress. The wildcat walkout – which some radical cadres attempted to provoke into longer stoppages -- cost the welfare and pension funds over half a million dollars a day.

So though observers don't expect the Revolutionary Union to hang its Maoist banner over 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., it will cost all sides plenty if the RU gets its propaganda and organizational fangs into the rank and file in the mass production factories during the next six months. All by courtesy of detente from comrades Mao and Hua in Peking.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Cannon's Flying High
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— The re-election campaign of stocky, suntanned Sen. Howard Cannon, D.-Nev., is flying high – thanks to contributions from the avaiation industry he oversees.

Cannon holds three posts which give him a powerful influence over commercial aviation and aircraft manufacturing:

1. He heads a Commerce subcommittee, which has jurisdiction over the Civil Aeronautics Board. The board, in turn, regulates the airlines.

2. He also chairs an Armed Services subcommittee, which gives him power over Pentagon purchases of military aircraft.

3. He is a key member of the Space Committee which strengthens his voice in aviation affairs.

The able Cannon, who speaks softly but swings a big stick in the Senate, has solicited campaign contributions from aviation executives who are beholden to him.

His fundraisers sent out 12,000 letters, many of them to industry people. The mailing brought back an astonishing quarter of a million dollars. We were able to trace at least $21,000 to aviation executives.

The list of contributors reads like a Who's Who of the industry. For example, nine Page Airways officials, including board chairman James P. Wilmot, coughed up $1,000 apiece.

Similar $1,000 contributions swer made by Edward Daly, World Airways president and hero of the Vietnam babylift; Robert Six, president of Continental Airlines; Edward Uhl, president of Fairchild Industries; and J. F. Stallings of Capitol International Airways.

Three executives of the Flying Tiger Line contributed a total of $1,400. We found contributions running into the hundreds from executives of Eastern Airlines, Frontier Airlines, United Aircraft, National Airlines, Wetern Airlines and TWA. There were donations, too, from such defense contractors as Boeing, Grumman, General Dynamics and Northrop.

Peculiarly, the individual donations form the defense contractors were received and recorded the same day. Nonetheless, the employes reached by our associate Bob Owens denied they had been pressured by their companies to contribute.

Footnote: A spokesman for the senator contended that "if we eliminated everyone who does business with the Space, Armed Services and Commerce committees, we'd eliminate almost everyone in American business." He insisted there is no relationship between Cannon's votes and his campaign contributions. The contributor list, added the spokesman, is "very clean, above board and honest."

CONTAINING CARTER: Democratic leaders have been burning up the long-distance telephone lines discussing what to do about Jimmy Carter. They want to slow his momentum enough that he will have to consult them, at least, about his policies and appointments.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D.-Minn., for one, has told leaders he intends to travel around the country and speak out on the issues. His intention is to bring public pressure on Carter to support Democratic principles.

"I'm not going to let him back down on our responsibilities to the cities and the poor," Humphrey has told party leaders.

Some leaders are sizing up Sen. Frank Church, D.-Idaho, as the candidate who might slow Carter's momentum. The private polls show Church gaining strongly on Carter in such states as Nebraska, Oregon, Nevada and Idaho. Calls have already gone out urging key Democrats in these states to unite behind Church.

Some Democrats point out that Carter must win on the first ballot, that he has little second-ballot strength. And they doubt that he'll go into the Democratic convention with enough delegates for a first-ballot victory.

HUGHES WILL: Within the tight, little circle of close associates who surrounded the late Howard Hughes, there is disagreement over the validity of the mysterious will that turned up in Salt Lake City.

It was typical of Hughes to share a secret with only one aide and to swear thim to absolute silence. The eccentric billionaire, therefore, could have revealed the will's existence to one of his Mormon attendants, with instructions on how to handle it after his death. The attendant could have arranged for the delivery to the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City.

This is the view of one intimate who believes the handwriting, misspellings and bequest to gas station operator Melvin Dummar not only are authentic but characteristic of Hughes.

The tycoon was known to wander, incognito, from his penthouse hermitage in Las Veagas. He also had periods of mental confusion. It is entirely possible that he could have wound up lying a longside a desert road, bleeding.

But other aides have noted that they believe are discrepancies in the handwriting. In the will, Hughes also referred to his giant flying boat as the "Spruce Goose." This was a term he never used, nor did his Mormaon aides in is presence.

His choice of Noah Dietrich, an estranged aide, as executor of the will also puzzled his closest aides. They always believed their boss would leave the bulk of his estate to the Hughes Medical Institute in Miami, not split his assets into fragments.

300 die in Italian quake

VENICE, Italy (AP) — About 300 persons were believed killed in an earthquake that jolted northeast Italy Thursday night. Strong tremors were felt in at least six other countries, causing panic among millions, but there were no reports of casualties or major damage outside of Italy.

In addition to the area of Italy rocked by the quake, there were tremors in sections of Yugoslavia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, West Germany, The Netherlands and Belgium. Hundreds of Belgians fled from high-rise apartment houses.

Italy's quake devastated dozens of towns and villages in the Tagliamento River Valley near the Yugoslav border. Major Italian cities did not suffer heavy damage or casualties.

National police headquarters in Rome said 187 bodies had been recovered in 19 towns, but several villages nestled in the foothills of the Alps were still cut off.

A police spokesman said most of the damage was in towns and villages along both sides of the Tagliamento, which flows from the eastern Alps into the Adriatic some 40 miles northeast of Venice.

Two more tremors struck the area this morning, but there were no reports of casualties or damage.

A few chimneys were knocked down in Venice and thousands rushed to the Piazza San Marco and other open spaces seeking safety, but no casualties or major damage was reported there or in other major cities.

The worst casualty toll was reported in Maiano, a town of 1,900 about four miles from the river and 11 miles from the district capital of Udine, where officials set up a command center.

Police said a series of sharp tremors killed 58, injured 300 and destroyed half the homes in Maiano. The town's mayor said the dead included a young girl crushed when a Renaissance bell tower fell.

The U.S. Air Force sent six helicopters with 10 medical officers, stretchers and other supplies from the air base at Vicenza to the quake area.

Italian army trucks carried troops into the area to begin digging through the rubble. They were joined by fire brigade vehicles and commercial bulldozers pressed into service.

The national police in Rome said the quake leveled Forgaria, a town of 4,000, and destroyed a quarter to a half of the buildings in the towns of Buia, Osoppo, San Pietro di Ramogna and Collaredo.

Interior Minister Francesco Cossiga worked through the night in Rome coordinating rescue work. Troops, police, firemen and volunteers were rushed to the disaster area from hundreds of miles away.

Authorities in Udine, a city of 90,000 about 15 miles east of the Tagliamento, ordered all doctors in the area mobilized and made urgent appeals for blood. They said damaged hospitals were unable to handle the flood of injured.

The quake collapsed dozens of bridges and sent tons of rock and earth crashing onto roads in the area.

2 injured in 1-car accident

SENATH— Two Senath men were injured, one seriously, in a one-car accident north of town Thursday night.

The driver of the car, Eddie Jaco, 26, suffered serious injuries, a passenger, Glen Edward McLish, 25, received moderate injuries.

The highway patrol reported the accident occurred when Jaco's southbound car ran off Highway 25 at the Octa community into a ditch, where it traveled 627 feet before coming back across the road and striking a dirt embankment.

The patrol said the car was traveling at a high rate of speed when the accident occurred.

Both injury victims were taken to Dunklin County Memorial Hospital at Kennett for treatment, and Jaco was late transferred to Campbell Clinic in Memphis.

Jobless rate steady

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate held steady in April at 7.5 per cent, ending five straight months of decline, the government said today.

The leveling off of the jobless rate indicated further improvement will be more difficult in the months ahead.

A bright spot in the job report was that total employment jumped by another 700,000 in April to a new high of 87.4 million, a sign of strong business growth.

However, because the number of Americans finding work nearly offset the big increase in job seekers last month, the jobless rate was unchanged. In April, another 720,000 went looking for work, raising the size of the civilian labor force to 94.4 million.

Despite the growth in jobs, the number of unemployed totaled about 7 million last month, the Labor Department said. Although this was substantially below the recession peak of 8.3 million in May 1975, joblessness remains very high by postwar standards.

Both the unemployment rate and inflation have improved dramatically since last October, but administration officials have repeatedly warned that the dramatic gains could not be sustained.

BOOK REVIEWS

THE FLIGHT OF THE EAGLE. By Donald Thomas. Viking. 238 Pages. $8.95.

His name: Captain Charles Augustus Tollemache (pronounced "Toll Mash.")

His mission: Prevent England's giddy Princess Caroline from embarrassing her hated husband, the Prince Regent, by throwing herself into the arms of the nation's newly-defeated arch-enemy, Napoleon Bonaparte.

His talent: An unerring instinct for being in the wrong place at the wrong time and thoroughly — or so it seems — botching things up.

With ingredients such as these — laced with plenty of first-rate wit — a historical novel can't go wrong and "The Flight of the Eagle" doesn't. Donald Thomas is a highly skillful writer, he knows his history and he succeeds in bringing off a lovely spoof of how things were in early 19th-century England and Europe and how what is now history might have been if Capt. Tollemache had been allowed to blunder about in the company of such giants of the time as Napoleon and Wellington.

Wellington, for example, regarded by most as a hero's hero, is in Tollemache's view little more than a pompous fool who knows little of soldiering and who would have been routed by Napoleon at Waterloo save for some heroic behind-the-scenes maneuvering by Tollemache. Napoleon rates somewhat higher in Tollemache's esteem, but since he is the enemy it is Tollemache's duty to bring him down, and this the captain does in some of the wildest coincidences that can be imagined.

A most entertaining novel, full of interesting bits of information as to the minutiae that made up those historic days but never forgetting that the story is the thing.

Symington promises hearing

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Senate committee hearing into the proposed move by the Air Force of its communications services at Kansas City to Scott Air Force Base in Illinois is promised by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

Symington, in a Kansas City Times dispatch from Washington today, said, "I have concluded it is essential to the interests of the people of Kansas City to provide an appropriate forum for review of the entire ramifications of this ill-conceived proposal."

The Air Force proposed last November to transfer the unit from Richards-Gebaur AFB outside Kansas City to Scott.

The move was halted on federal court order because the Air Force had not prepared a required environmental impact report.

The Air Force has said it expects to have the impact statement filed in a week or so.

"In the weeks ahead the investigatory powers of the Senate will be brought to bear on this issue," Symington said. No date has been set for the hearing.

U.S. to cut timber in Mo. wilderness

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The U.S. Forest Service's plans to continue timber cutting in three of the four tracts included in the new Missouri wilderness preservation legislation now pending before Congress received sharp criticism Thursday from Natural Resources Director James Wilson.

In a letter released Thursday to Donald L. Rollens, supervisor of National Forests in Missouri, Wilson wrote," If you still plan timber sales in light of the interest of the major elected officials of this state, I will consider this a major federal action and will call for a thorough environmental impact statement of each proposed sale."

Last October Rollens had declared timber cutting and sales would be permitted in Paddy Creek, Piney Creek and portions of Bell Mountain. Those areas are included in the Missouri Wilderness legislation introduced by Sens. Thomas Eagleton and Stuart Symington, and Rep. James Symington to create wilderness study areas where no timber cutting would be allowed for a six-year evaluation period.

Wilson said he regarded the Forest Service policy as "being insensitive to the state's request to preserve these areas until Congress has had full opportunity to evaluate the wilderness potential of these areas."

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

XXX

The words ring across 200 years: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain inalienable rights, that among these are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. . ."

Great words, remembered on great occasions -- and forgotten on small ones? Forgotten in day-to-day dealings with people who have not been endowed by their Creator with all that most of us have?

We do forget sometimes that it's hard to achieve liberty in a wheelchair, hard to pursue happiness on crutches. Harder, even, when the disability is not an obvious physical one -- when mental or emotional problems cloud a life, or poverty and discrimination stack the deck.

Fortunately, some of us do remember, and work to give the equality of opportunity to the handicapped that the Declaration of Independence promised to us all. One such organization is Goodwill Industries, which has been helping the handicapped toward independence since 1902, by rehabilitation and training that enable them to become useful and productive members of society.

SETTLING NATIONWIDE STRIKES

As usual the country is being subjected to a nationwide strike by a major union. And when this one in the tire industry is settled, there will be another one.

It does not take much intelligence to see that the whole process of striking and strike settlement is idiotic and barbaric. To begin with, both sides know when the existing contract will end. They have more than enough time to work out a new contract before the old one expires. But labor union leaders would have no claim to their jobs if they did not insure that strikes took place from time to time. For some strange reason, the existence of a strike is taken as proof by the rank and file that their bosses are earning their pay. Management, following equally uncivilized customs, seems to feel that it must resist the union, and must turn down all demands— at least one time. Both sides have come to feel that bargaining really can't take place unless a strike is on, and that it is less than honorable to settle a dispute swiftly and peacefully.

What makes this process so idiotic in this day and time is that neither side will be seriously hurt by the strike, and neither side will end up paying the bill. The laborer receives various forms of unemployment compensation when he is on strike. And management has long ago learned that it can pass on the new higher production costs to the customer. In short, it is the buying public which suffers from the strike, both directly and indirectly, and ends up footing the costs.

The thought that comes to mind is this. Why not a law which forces both management and labor, in the case of the major nationwide industries and nationwide labor unions, to reach a new contract before the old one expires? And if they do not, then levy a a fine on both sides of such massive proportions that both sides will get down to serious bargaining in a hurry. The fine could be levied on behalf of the public, local or general, to compensate the people for the suffering they would have to endure if the bargaining failed. This approach would not deny collective bargaining. It would just put it in a civilized framework. And above all else, it would protect the public from being the victims of the self-interest and stupidity of both management and labor.

A CONGRESS WITHIN THE CONGRESS

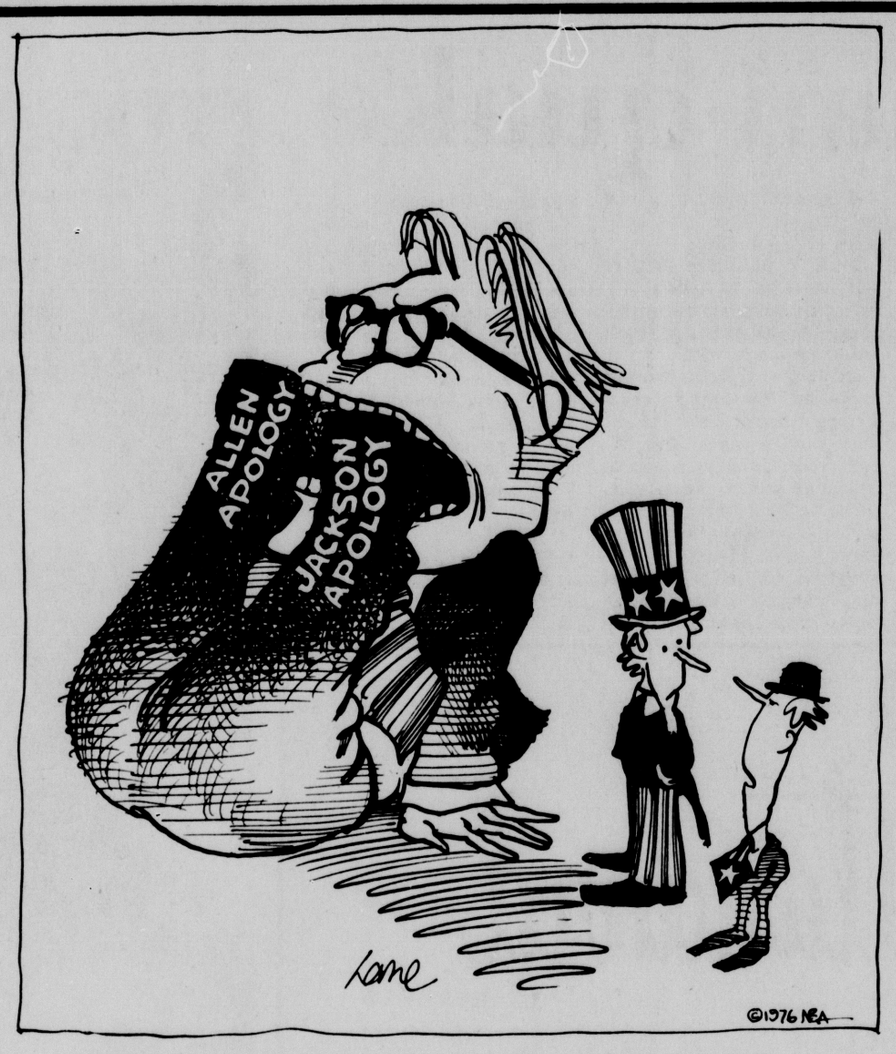
The word around Capitol Hill is that the Members were told quite bluntly by their constituents during the Christmas-New Year's holiday break that they were in error in slashing the Defense budget by almost ten billion dollars. The home-front advice, combined with the blatant communist aggression in Angola — despite detente and despite the Helsinki agreement on Security and Cooperation in Europe — apparently changed the minds of many Members. This year they seem to be facing up to the unpleasant reality of the Soviet military buildup and voting funds necessary to begin a reversal of a trend that has been running pro-USSR for more than a decade.

One recent analysis of the voting records of the 94th Congress provided a special insight into this national defense issue. It identified one group that consistently voted to cut our military strength. That group is little known in the hinterlands. It is called Members of Congress for Peace through Law. (MCPL). The American Security Council's National Security Voting Index shows that the majority of the 170 members of this organization scored between 0 and 10 on a scle of 100, while the majority of the non-MCPL members in Congress scored between 90 and 100.

In its analysis the American Security Council looked closely at the policies of the Members of Congress for Peace through Law. Here is their statement of purpose and goal: "to coordinate Congressional concern for world peace . . . and for the achievement of general and complete disarmament under enforceable world law." In one of their fliers, MCPL says: "National governments . . . have become the main threat to national security. The foreign policies of individual nations . . . (should) seek . . . a world government . . . A new internationalism would recognize an obligation on the part of the world's most powerful nation to enter into a process for the redistribution of wealth and power on a global scale."

We find ourselves wondering how these objectives square with the Constitution of the United States, which the Members of Congress are sworn to uphold and defend. We also wonder how these MCPL members justify their allegiance to MCPL with their obligations to their party platforms.

A letter to your "representatives" in the Congress, asking whether they are members of MCPL, should reveal if they are representing you and their party, or some special interest group that wants world gov-bernment and unilateral-disarmament for the United States. It is a letter that would be worth writing between now and November.



"That would probably silence a lesser man."

SCOOP JACKSON'S MIRACLE CURE

In medicine's dark ages, there was a common "cure" known as bleeding, which, unfortunately, probably killed more than it cured.

In theory, it was thought that the best way to rid a person's ailing body of whatever disease it was afflicted with was to drain the "soured" blood from the body, thereby removing the disease.

In practice, it didn't always work that way, and as many poor folk died from the cure, as they did the disease.

Now in Washington's own version of Alice in Wonderland, "bleeding" is making a comeback in the field of politics.

Sen. Henry Jackson ((D-Wash.), one of the hardest running of the Democratic Party's perennial presidential candidates, is suggesting "the cure" for those few states which have managed to stay ahead of the depression.

What bothers the good senator is the fact that the 19 states which have laws prohibiting compulsory unionism managed to attract six out of every ten new jobs created in the country during the past ten years, thereby maintaining a rate of unemployment about half of that in the other 31 states.

Figures don't lie: during the last 10-year period for which information is available, the 19 Right to Work states gained more than 1.6 million new manufacturing jobs; the remaining 31 states, though accounting for 70 percent of the nation's population, managed to attract only 1.3 million jobs.

These states, whose myopic legislators are driving industry away by clinging to compulsory unionism, are indeed in economic trouble.

Senator Jackson put it like this to a Philadelphia audience during a recent campaign swing: The Right to Work states, he said, "have taken jobs right out of...Pennsylvania" (and Massachusetts, and New York, and Connecticut, and Rhode Island, and Illinois, and so forth).

With all the logic of a witch doctor, the senator suggests evening things up, not by bringing good health to the states which are stagnating, but by dragging the Right to Work states down with the rest.

So instead of suggesting that Pennsylvania and other sick states adopt Right to Work laws of their own, the senator has pledged his all-out support for Big Labor's long-standing campaign to destroy that section of federal law which reaffirms the right of states to outlaw compulsory unionism. (He has been joined in this anti-Right to Work crusade by fellow campaigners Rep. Morris Udall and Jimmy Carter.)

If you can't beat 'em, Senator Jackson feels, you gotta beat 'em down.

We don't question the senator's facts. The Right to Work states have indeed been just about the only prosperous states in the nation during the past several years. When the rate of unemployment in the compulsory unionism states averaged 6.3 percent in 1974, the average rate in the Right to Work states was only 4.6 percent. While New York was losing 187,700 manufacturing jobs, Massachusetts another 43,600, and Maryland 7,300 between 1963 and 1973, every one of the 19 Right to Work states gained jobs, with eight of them gaining more than 100,000 new jobs each.

No, we don't question Senator Jackson's facts. We question his logic, his wisdom, and his sense of fair play.

Doctors stopped bleeding people many years ago. Senator Jackson should do likewise. Without freedom, the Right to Work states, most assuredly, would dry up like Pennsylvania, Washington, and all the rest

DETENTE SHOULD BE QUESTIONED

Detente-- President Ford would rather not use that word anymore-- began when President Richard Nixon was unchallenged from the right and was trying to win the approval of the intellectual left. Nixon made all the right conservative noises when he was campaigning for President in 1968, but after he was elected he turned in the opposite direction. Borrowing Henry Kissinger from Nelson Rockefeller's brain trust, he began a policy of trying to reason with the Communist superpowers.

The ideal of detente was commendable enough and might now be working if it meant the same to the Soviets as it did to us. But enough time ahs passed now to see that we and the Soviets are not speaking the aame language in mor ways than one.

Mr. Ford may call his policy "peace through strength" if he wishes to, but there has been no peace and our strength has slipped badly.

While the U.S. has been seriously negotiating with the Soviets, making a concession here and then there, the Soviets have:

"Aided the invading Communist forces in Southeast Asia, bringing aboutthe fall of South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos;

--Encouraged a destructive war by Arab states against Israel;

--Supported a Marxist govertnment in Chile;

--Helped foment revolution in Portugal;

--Interfered in the internal affairs of Angola using Cuban forces in its reach for new conquest--as well as arming othe countries in Africa;

--Possibly violated provisions of he SALT I agreement;

--Reneged on compliance with human rights provisions of the Helsinki treaty;

--Expanded espionage activbities agains the U.S.

It would be interesting to have access to the CIA files, which would reveal a much longer list of aggressive and expansionist activities by the Soviets since the beginning of detente.

Detente should be questioned. In this election year, Ronald Ragan is in the right in raising these issues; it is hoped that he will persist.

TIME BOMB
By Ray Crow

Well, here's a reason for a rhyme:
Our Congress keeps revising time.
They say we all must do our slaving
In summertime by Daylight Saving,
And then amendments they enact
By which the span is upped or backed.
This might be right for city dwellers,
But what about the country fellers—
Can Congress tell them how the dickens
To sell such change to cows and chickens?
Moreover, friends, our time is precious,
And such enactments may enmesh us
In more red tape than what we've got,
Which seems an awful lawful lot.
And, further more, if congressmen
Can mess around with time, why then,
How long before they'll say a minute
Can only have 10 seconds in it,
Or how long ere their body acts
To pass a time-consumption tax?
Yes, friends, this legislative threat
In time may prove the worst one yet.
And even though they do enact
Such laws to make the time exact,
Some bureaucrats, it's safe to say,
Will never know the time of day!

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

New Fortune Cookies:

Heavily financed, staffed, equipped revolutionary union building Maoist activist cadres inside U. S. Labor

NEW YORK — Small Maoist Red guerrilla squads operating in the East, mocking the aging official Moscow-controlled Communist party USA also headquartered here, have infiltrated a series of major unions.

These new guerrillas, contrary to what their violence-prone bomb-planting West Coast counterparts enjoy, prefer the strategy of disruption, wildcat strike provocation and infliction of huge financial losses on industry and rank and file unionists in a drive to brutalize production and corrode the national economy.

They are of many names, these neo-revolutionaries. But of one shade. They talk and dream and organize for the day when they can launch their national Marxist- Leninist-Maoist thought national Commuist party.

Call them the October Lague, evolutionary Union or by a score of other noms de guerre, they aren't will-o'-the-wisp. Nor are they conjured up by junior G-men. They are here. They have dug deep into the American postal system, the United Mine Workers membership, he fringes of the United Rubber Workers, the feud-ripped United Steelworkers of America, and are now developing strategy for the prolongation of any strike which the United Auto Workers may call.

The Revolutionary Union (RU) is typical. Its way-out, radical cadres are made up of articulate university-educated young people. Launched in 1968 in the San Francisco Bay area, the RU was directed by an American Maoist who had jut returned from Peking. It splintered as do most radical organizations. Then it turned up in Chicago and New York. Never has it lacked for money. Big money. Heavy literature. No dearth of phones or headquarters or staff. No doubt of its Maoist philosophy. Or of its fanatical dedication to the violent overthrow of the American government. No Star Trek stuff this. It's operating today.

For several years now the Revolutionary Union, through a faction which calls itself "The Outlaws," has attempted to seize power in the New York Metro Area Postal Union of the American Postal Workers Union (AFL-CIO). Any wildcat stoppages in this region could disrupt billions of dollars in international commercial, industrial and financial transactions.

The Metro Union has been led by President Moe Biller, a sophisticated anit-Communist. He's fought the RU. Stood up strong during the days when an RU faction held an entire union meeting as hostage in the Statler Hilton. It took the riot police to rescue the membership, many of whom were beaten. Some were hurt by chairs the RU heaved at them.

Just the other day Biller ran for reelection. He polled 83 per cent of the vote. But it isn't easy to lead a union and keep a rank and file from getting high on great expectations and "entitlements" escalated by constant RU cries of "sell-out." The rank and file gets uptight. And the union leadership finds it must deliver more and more -- as waas the case in the deficit-rotting U.S. postal system.

There isn't a grievance which the RU orators overlook. Nor any area of discontent. They can be seen at "welfare" rallies. Orthey are somewhere out there now actually talking of "uniting all New York and New Jersey workers."

Can the new Marxist-Leninist-Maoist thought cadres really injure the economy? They already have in the postal system, for example.

And there is the saga of a big, tough, fist-thumping RU man, roving activist, Lewis (Skip) Delano. Back in 1973, still in his 20s, Delano, though educated and skilled, got a job as a part-time "sub" on the midnight shift in New York General Post Office. Soon he was a union shop steward. Soon he was rattling the union meetings.

Then in December 1974 he left with a female aide and turned up in the West Virginia coal fields early in 1975. By August he had a committee going. With him were two other young RU men. They shouted against the United Mine Workers leaders. They inveighed against industry. They grabbed at a small group of coaldiggers who struck early in August in protest over some minor issue.

By early September (1975) Delano and his cadres had provoked 80,000 coaldiggers into a long illegal strike. Cost: $120 million in lost bituminoius production, $22 million in lost wages and over $6.5 million in pension and welfare premiums.

Thus cut in welfare and pension payments hit directly at the health and old age security of the miners themselves. True, the mining industry pays $640 million annually into these funds. But constant strikes could hurt badly.

For example, there weresome short stoppages early in February 1976 in southern Virginia and West Virginia. The walkout was called in protest against the proposed black lung bill then in Congress. The wildcat walkout -- which some radical cadres attempted to provoke into longer stoppages -- cost the welfare and pension funds over half a million dollars a day.

So though observers don't expect the Revolutionary Union to hang its Maoist banner over 1600 Pennsylvania Ave., it will cost all sides plenty if the RU gets its propaganda and organizational fangs into the rank and file in the mass production factories during the next six months. All by courtesy of detente from comrades Mao and Hua in Peking.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
Cannon's Flying High
with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON— The re-election campaign of stocky, suntanned Sen. Howard Cannon, D.-Nev., is flying high -- thanks to contributions from the avaiation industry he oversees.

Cannon holds three posts which give him a powerful influence over commercial aviation and aircraft manufacturing:

1. He heads a Commerce subcommittee, which has jurisdiction over the Civil Aeronautics Board. The board, in turn, regulates the airlines.

2. He also chairs an Armed Services subcommittee, which gives him power over Pentagon purchases of military aircraft.

3. He is a key member of the Space Committee which strengthens his voice in aviation affairs.

The able Cannon, who speaks softly but swings a big stick in the Senate, has solicited campaign contributions from aviation executives who are beholden to him.

His fundraisers sent out 12,000 letters, many of them to industry people. The mailing brought back an astonishing quarter of a million dollars. We were able to trace at least $21,000 to aviation executives.

The list of contributors reads like a Who's Who of the industry. For example, nine Page Airways officials, including board chairman James P. Wilmot, coughed up $1,000 apiece.

Similar $1,000 contributions swer made by Edward Daly, World Airways president and hero of the Vietnam babylift; Robert Six, president of Continental Airlines; Edward Uhl, president of Fairchild Industries; and J. F. Stallings of Capitol International Airways.

Three executives of the Flying Tiger Line contributed a total of $1,400. We found contributions running into the hundreds from executives of Eastern Airlines, Frontier Airlines, United Aircraft, National Airlines, Wetern Airlines and TWA. There were donations, too, from such defense contractors as Boeing, Grumman, General Dynamics and Northrop.

Peculiarly, the individual donations form the defense contractors were received and recorded the same day. Nonetheless, the employes reached by our associate Bob Owens denied they had been pressured by their companies to contribute.

Footnote: A spokesman for the senator contended that "if we eliminated everyone who does business with the Space, Armed Services and Commerce committees, we'd eliminate almost everyone in American business." He insisted there is no relationship between Cannon's votes and his campaign contributions. The contributor list, added the spokesman, is "very clean, above board and honest."

CONTAINING CARTER: Democratic leaders have been burning up the long-distance telephone lines discussing what to do about Jimmy Carter. They want to slow his momentum enough that he will have to consult them, at least, about his policies and appointments.

Sen. Hubert Humphrey, D.-Minn., for one, has told leaders he intends to travel around the country and speak out on the issues. His intention is to bring public pressure on Carter to support Democratic principles.

"I'm not going to let him back down on our responsibilities to the cities and the poor," Humphrey has told party leaders.

Some leaders are sizing up Sen. Frank Church, D.-Idaho, as the candidate who might slow Carter's momentum. The private polls show Church gaining strongly on Carter in such states as Nebraska, Oregon, Nevada and Idaho. Calls have already gone out urging key Democrats in these states to unite behind Church.

Some Democrats point out that Carter must win on the first ballot, that he has little second-ballot strength. And they doubt that he'll go into the Democratic convention with enough delegates for a first-ballot victory.

HUGHES WILL: Within the tight, little circle of close associates who surrounded the late Howard Hughes, there is disagreement over the validity of the mysterious will that turned up in Salt Lake City.

It was typical of Hughes to share a secret with only one aide and to swear thim to absolute silence. The eccentric billionaire, therefore, could have revealed the will's existence to one of his Mormon attendants, with instructions on how to handle it after his death. The attendant could have arranged for the delivery to the Mormon Church in Salt Lake City.

This is the view of one intimate who believes the handwriting, misspellings and bequest to gas station operator Melvin Dummar not only are authentic but characteristic of Hughes.

The tycoon was known to wander, incognito, from his penthouse hermitage in Las Veagas. He also had periods of mental confusion. It is entirely possible that he could have wound up lying a longside a desert road, bleeding.

But other aides have noted that they believe are discrepancies in the handwriting. In the will, Hughes also referred to his giant flying boat as the "Spruce Goose." This was a term he never used, nor did his Mormaon aides in is presence.

His choice of Noah Dietrich, an estranged aide, as executor of the will also puzzled his closest aides. They always believed their boss would leave the bulk of his estate to the Hughes Medical Institute in Miami, not split his assets into fragments.

Symington promises hearing

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A Senate committee hearing into the proposed move by the Air Force of its communications services at Kansas City to Scott Air Force Base in Illinois is promised by Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

Symington, in a Kansas City Times dispatch from Washington today, said, "I have concluded it is essential to the interests of the people of Kansas City to provide an appropriate forum for review of the entire ramifications of this ill-conceived proposal."

The Air Force proposed last November to transfer the unit from Richards-Gebaur AFB outside Kansas City to Scott.

The move was halted on federal court order because the Air Force had not prepared a required environmental impact report.

The Air Force has said it expects to have the impact statement filed in a week or so.

"In the weeks ahead the investigatory powers of the Senate will be brought to bear on this issue," Symington said. No date has been set for the hearing.

BOOK REVIEWS

THE FLIGHT OF THE EAGLE. By Donald Thomas. Viking. 238 Pages. $8.95.

His name: Captain Charles Augustus Tollemache (pronounced "Toll Mash.")

His mission: Prevent England's giddy Princess Caroline from embarrassing her hated husband, the Prince Regent, by throwing herself into the arms of the nation's newly-defeated arch-enemy, Napoleon Bonaparte.

His talent: An unerring instinct for being in the wrong place at the wrong time and thoroughly — or so it seems — botching things up.

With ingredients such as these — laced with plenty of first-rate wit — a historical novel can't go wrong and "The Flight of the Eagle" doesn't. Donald Thomas is a highly skillful writer, he knows his history and he succeeds in bringing off a lovely spoof of how things were in early 19th-century England and Europe and how what is now history might have been if Capt. Tollemache had been allowed to blunder about in the company of such giants of the time as Napoleon and Wellington.

Wellington, for example, regarded by most as a hero's hero, is in Tollemache's view little more than a pompous fool who knows little of soldiering and who would have been routed by Napoleon at Waterloo save for some heroic behind-the-scenes maneuvering by Tollemache. Napoleon rates somewhat higher in Tollemache's esteem, but since he is the enemy it is Tollemache's duty to bring him down, and this the captain does in some of the wildest coincidences that can be imagined.

A most entertaining novel, full of interesting bits of information as to the minutiae that made up those historic days but never forgetting that the story is the thing.

U.S. to cut timber in Mo. wilderness

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The U.S. Forest Service's plans to continue timber cutting in three of the four tracts included in the new Missouri wilderness preservation legislation now pending before Congress received sharp criticism Thursday from Natural Resources Director James Wilson.

In a letter released Thursday to Donald L. Rollens, supervisor of National Forests in Missouri, Wilson wrote," If you still plan timber sales in light of the interest of the major elected officials of this state, I will consider this a major federal action and will call for a thorough environmental impact statement of each proposed sale."

Last October Rollens had declared timber cutting and sales would be permitted in Paddy Creek, Piney Creek and portions of Bell Mountain. Those areas are included in the Missouri Wilderness legislation introduced by Sens. Thomas Eagleton and Stuart Symington, and Rep. James Symington to create wilderness study areas where no timber cutting would be allowed for a six-year evaluation period.

Wilson said he regarded the Forest Service policy as "being insensitive to the state's request to preserve these areas until Congress has had full opportunity to evaluate the wilderness potential of these areas."

While her son is undergoing open heart surgery, Mrs. George Simmons of Charleston paints in the waiting room of Le Bonheur Children's Hospital, Memphis, Tenn. Nine days later son Elliott, 8, was back in school at Charleston. The painting is a floral water color.

Playing the waiting game: son's surgery

An attractive young brunette in the waiting room at Le Bonheur Children's hospital didn't seem to notice the quizzical glances of passersby, as she calmly put brush to a water color canvas. She occasionally looked at the only other person there, a handsome man with stylish haircut, seemingly engrossed in a large book.

Of those within sight and sound of this couple only the receptionist knew. At that moment their son's heart was in the hands of Dr. Robert G. Allen in an upstairs operating room.

That was the way Mr. & Mrs. George Simmons of Charleston chose to live through the hours their son, Elliott, 8, was undergoing open-heart surgery, pioneereed in Memphis at Le Bonheur in 1959, using a mechanical heart pump.

This was the second surgery for the second grade lad .

Julie Simmons grew up with art. Her father is a commerical artist in Charleston and Julie teaches art there. She graduated from Murray State College in Kentucky. She is adapt with oils, water color and sculpts, too. But, for the still-life flower arrangement that day she chose the delicacy of water colors.

"I normally don't paint in tense situations. I just knew Elliott would be in surgery all morning, and although I could never take my mind off that fact, at least I'm keeping myself occupied."

The book her husband, 48, scowled over was not a whodunit or hisotircal novel. It was a tome on the intricacies of how to fly an airplane by reference only to instruments, bad weather flying. He'd flown to Memphis from Charleston and would be commuting throughout the week Elliott would be at Le Bonheur, while conducting affairs of Simmons Equipment Co., an International Harvester Co. dealership. George flies a recently acquired Cessna push-pull twin -engine aircraft, has logged some 700 flight hours and is studying for the written examination for an instrument rating. He graduated from the University of Missouri.

Le Bonheur Hospital has been a haven of hope before for young Elliott. Two years ago surgeons placed a shunt to drain fluid from his cranial cavity. Then, through a catherization procedure the truth was discovered about the heart defect: a hole between the upper chambers of the heart.

"It wasn't good news, but at least we knew then for sure," said the 33-year-old mother.

While waiting for word from the operating room the Simmonses also recalled how a little boy once startled a doctor at Le Bonheur, caused him to laugh. Elliott had wrapped a rubber snake around his chest under his shirt. Dr. J.T. Jabbour was caught in the trick when unbuttoning the boy's shirt for an examination. He remembered Elliott after that.

Now, the hours go slowly. The vase on the easel is nearly full of delicately-tinted blossoms. The book now has more pages read than to be read. It is nearly noon.

Suddenly, "Elliott's out of surgery. He's okay!"

It's the voice of Miss Sally Harrison Le Bonheur hostess' just a little breathless, although she's made such pronouncements many times before to many other parents.

George slowly closed the book and then his eyes, too.

Julie stood up, holding the canvas up to the sunlight coming in the waiting room window. "This is a memorable picture. I want it to be a good one.

Elliott was admitted to Le Bonheur April 11, returned home in time for Easter and went back to Hearnes Elementary School just nine days after his open-heart surgery.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with eating places that charge the same for coffee whether or not one drinks it black or uses expensive cream and sugar. I drink it black and think there should be a different price for those of us who do. — SALLIE.

DEAR POLLY — I have a suggestion for Mrs. L.S. who dislikes the way groceries are packed at the store and who would like to have all refrigerated or frozen items in one bag. I unpack my cart at the check-out counter so that all cold and frozen things are left until last. Then I ask the person who is packing to please put these things in one bag. I get results 90 per cent of the time but one needs to ask every time. — NANCY.

DEAR POLLY — When top stitching a garment you are making, especially when using a contrasting color, use two threads threaded through the needle at the same time. This also works very well when making machine-made buttonholes. — HELEN.

Ann Landers

Straying husbands: who's to blame?

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the column that made it very clear: a lot of husbands enjoy more than lunch during lunch hour.

I wonder, though, how many of those cheating husbands are married to women who fall into one of the following categories -- whenever he suggests making love, the answer is:

I have a headache.

I had my hair fixed today.

Is that all you ever think about?

The children are still up and they'll hear us.

My stomach is upset.

You must be a sex maniac. It was only last Thursday . . .

We aren't in our 20s, you know. Cool it, Dad.

If you insist, go ahead, but don't expect any help from me. I've had a terrible day and I'm dead tired.

How long has it been since that wife said:

I love you.

You're a wonderful bed partner.

I appreciate all the nice things you do for me.

Hurry to bed. I need you.

There are two sides to every story, Ann. -- Been There

Dear Been: Sometimes three. His side, her side, and the truth, which is usually somewhere in the middle. Thanks for a good letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Something I read in your column really hit home. It was from the young girl who was stunned when a customer came into the store where she was working and asked, "How old is your baby?" (The customer was staring at tthe stretch marks on the girl's stomach.) Too bad she had such ugly results from her pregnancy, but your reply was right on, Ann. No salesperson should wear a two-pieced outfit with her stomach exposed.

Now for my experience: I, too, was embarrassed by stretch marks, but the circumstances were quite different. I happened to be in a doctor's office for an examination. After I removed my clothes, the nurse came in. When she saw me she said, "Boy, have YOU got stretch marks! Man, I've never seen anything like THEM before!"

I was speechless. This happened a year ago and it's still fresh in my mind. Will you comment, please? -- Your Fan In Clinton, Iowa

Dear Fan: Too bad you didn't regain your composure in time to report the experience to the doctor. A nurse who doesn't have any better sense isn't qualified to work with patients.

Dear Ann: I stayed home from work today because I had the flu. My wife went to the drugstore so I answered the phone. Some man must have been trying to call the Coast Guard and got us by mistake. He wanted to know if the coast was clear. When I told my wife she got rattled. What do you think, Annie? -- Benzie

Dear B.: I kicked the slats out of my cradle when I heard that joke for the first time, and I'm no kid. Your letter came from Boston. I trust you made the Dean's list, Buddy.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teenage Sex -- Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers,P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Three-time All-Stater "Frankie Boy" Robinson will play at Arkansas State

LILBOURN--Thursday night at 9:00 Frankie Robinson signed a national letter of intent to play college basketball for Arkansas University at Jonesboro.

"Frankie Boy" as he was nicknamed had been a starter for the Lilbourn Panthers since the third game of the season his freshman year. Since then his name has been a household word to roundball fans. "We won our first game of the that season but lost the second and I could see that we needed some changes", said former coach Larry Warren, now principal of Lilbourn High School. Robinson was inserted into the lineup and promptly responded with a 23 point performance.

Sinch the unexpected move by coach Warren, Frankie Robinson has been dazziling the southeast Missouri fans for the past four years. The 6-2 guard-forward improved his ball handling from his freshman to his sophomore year and led the Panthers to the state Class 2A basketball championship under the tutorship of coach Warren. Frankie so impressed the sportswriters and sportscasters in the state playoffs that he became the first Missouri high school players ever to be named to the all-state team as a sophomore.

Robinson became the Panther leader. Whenever the Panthers needed some points Frankie was the one they looked to. When they needed someone to take care of the ball under a pressure defense or to stall the game away Frankie was their boy.

As a junior Robinson led the Panthers to an undefeated season and a second straight state championship. He led the Panthers to the regional championship as a senior but Lilbourn lost to Clearwater in the second round of the state tournament.

As a freshman Robinson stepped into the starting lineup and averaged 15.3 points a game for 22 games. His sophomore year he averaged 16.6 points a game with his big game coming in the finals of the state tournament in which he dropped in 33 points and gained the attention of the media. As a junior Robinson increased his game average to 17.5 points and his senior year he averaged 22.7.

Robinson has been named to the all conference teams for four years. All District for four years. He was selected to the Daily Standard All-Star team for three years and named to all-state for three years.

At Arkansas State Robinson will be playing for first year coach Marvin Adams and assistants Gary Holland and Bill Tyer. Adams was the assistant coach at Kansas State last year.

Arkansas State University is a major college and this year under coach Adams will be playing some top flite competition.

The Indians are in the Southland conference with McNeese State, Louisiana Tech, U. of SWLA, Larma U., U. Tex. at Arlington. Included in the schedule this season will be a home and home game with SEMSU. Also on the schedule for next season will be Big Eight power Kansas State, Oklahoma State, North Texas State, Hardin Simmons, S. Mississippi, Pan American, NELA, NWLA, Rolla and Central Oklahoma.

Assistant coach Gary Holland said that Arkansas State was very high on Robinson. "I've been watching him for the past three years," said the former assistant coach at Three Rivers Junior College. "He's a good ball handler, a good shooter and good feeder", Holland commented. "We're just tickled to get such a good prospect at our guard position", He said.

Frankie Robinson holds pen in hand after signing a letter of Intent to attend Arkansas State University at Jonesboro, Arkansas to play basketball for the Indians and head coach Marvin Adams. Frankie's grandmother Arnell McFerron is sitting to the left of her famous grandson. Mrs. and Mrs. McFerron raised Frankie from six months of age. The McFerron family is famous for their basketball prowess in sotheast Missouri. Standing are shown left to right: Lilbourn coach Bob Phelps, ASU assistant coach Gary Holland and Lilbourn Principal Larry Warren.

Littell, Blaylock perform well

The Daily Standard has received the first reports on minor leaguer Steve Coulson of Fisk and on big leaguer Mark Littell of Gideon.

Littell, who surprised many by making the Kansas City Royals' roster this spring, is off to an outstanding start with the parent club after a couple of seasons at the Omaha farm team in the American Association. The hard throwing righthander has been used exclusively from the bullpen in the early going and has yet to allow an earned run in six appearances and ten innings of work. Littell, who earned his first save of the season Wednesday night at Boston, has given up only six hits, striking out 11 and walking only five. Manager Whitey Herzog has indicated that Littell may earn a starting assignment before long.

Galen McSpadden of Puxico, working for the Padres' AAA club at Hawaii in the Pacific Coast League, continues to struggle on the mound in the early going. McSpadden is 0-1 with an ERA of 5.82 after three appearances.

Coulson, playing with the Yankees' West Haven team in the AA Eastern League, is hitting only .226 after the first week of play but is leading the league in triples with two. Coulson has driven in seven runs.

Malden's Gary Blaylock continued his good hitting for the Royals' Jacksonvile club in the AA Southern League. Blaylock's averaged dipped to .303 after going 4 for 17 last week, but two of the four safeties were home runs.

The minor league statistics are provided by Player Periscope of Novato, California, while Mark Littell's statistics were provided by the Kansas City Royals' front office.

Celtics keep on winning

BOSTON (AP) — The mighty Boston Celtics are off and running in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference championship playoff, and there's no doubt Cleveland's upstart Cavaliers have their work cut out.

The Celtics built a whopping 16-point lead in the first half, withstood a furious Cleveland comeback for a 77-77 tie after three periods and then exploded in the final quarter for a 111-99 victory Thursday night in the best-of-seven series opener.

The third game of the Western Conference final playoffs will be played tonight at Phoenix with the Suns and the Golden State Warriors tied at 1-1 in their best-of-seven series.

"We played well for about three quarters of the game," Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn said. "In the third period we just played putridly. We let 'em back in the ball game, but we won and that's the big thing."

"No one thing plagued us more than another — unless it was the guys running around in the green and white uniforms," Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch said. "Without (injured) Jim Chones, we definitely are a different basketball team.

"But I didn't think we were going to fall dead. I honestly thought we could win. We had our chance and didn't get the job done. Fortunately, it's a seven-game series.

"We'll get together tomorrow (today), do some shooting and go over the films. We won't try to make any major changes. We'll just try to do our own things better in the next game Sunday."

Chones suffered a broken toe in practice Tuesday and is sidelined for the series. He watched from the bench, his right foot in a cast, while veteran Nate Thurmond was forced to play 39 minutes. Thurmond grabbed 16 rebounds, but scored only nine points.

Thurmond also held Boston center Dave Cowens to 14 points. However, forwards John Havlicek and Paul Silas scored 26 and 21 points, respectively, and Jo Jo White hit for 20 from the backcourt position.

"You don't break our spirit easily," said Dick Snyder after matching Cleveland teammate Campy Russell's 21-point production. "Nobody will quit. We'll just have to work harder Sunday."

Nicklaus draws first golfing penalty ever

DALLAS (AP) — "I'm sorry," said Byron Nelson.

"Anything you can do about it?" asked Jack Nicklaus.

"No," replied Nelson.

"It was just one of those things," sighed Nicklaus.

"You have a great attitude," said Nelson, adding with a smile: "Besides being a helluva golfer."

The brief exchange Thursday involved a mysterious mishap that cost Nicklaus a two-shot penalty and left him five strokes behind the leader after the first round of the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Mark Hayes, a non-winner, stole the glory and Nicklaus got the gaff as he set out in quest of his third Nelson title and the $40,000 top prize.

While Hayes was capturing a one-shot lead over three veteran challengers, Nicklaus was trying to shake off his first penalty ever for carrying too many clubs in his bag.

Hayes, often a title contender but not yet a champion in four years on the tour, forged a five-under-par 66 and moved into the second round today with a stroke edge over Forrest Fezler, Don Bies and Marty Fleckman.

A stroke back was a quintet comprised of John Schlee, Dave Eichelberger, Eddie Pearce, Bob Smith and Tom Kite. Within easy striking distance at 69 was a group headed by Lee Trevino, Tony Jacklin and Don January.

Defending champion Tom Watson, Masters champ Ray Floyd, two-time tour winner Ben Crenshaw and veteran Tom Weiskopf topped the 70 shooters while it was Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer among the 71 group.

"I guess I will have to go back to school and learn to count," said Nicklaus, who, after a few irate moments, seemed to accept the penalty without undue distress.

The club, which mysteriously appeared in his bag, belonged to David Graham and was a pitching wedge which Nicklaus said he examined on the practice tee, then laid down across a bucket of balls to keep the grip from getting wet.

"I counted my clubs on the first tee as I always do, and so did my caddy ...," Nicklaus said. "I don't know how it got in there. It might have slipped under a head cover, someone might have slipped it in my bag after I had counted my clubs...."

While her son is undergoing open heart surgery, Mrs. George Simmons of Charleston paints in the waiting room of Le Bonheur Children's Hospital, Memphis, Tenn. Nine days later son Elliott, 8, was back in school at Charleston. The painting is a floral water color.

Playing the waiting game: son's surgery

An attractive young brunette in the waiting room at Le Bonheur Children's hospital didn't seem to notice the quizzical glances of passersby, as she calmly put brush to a water color canvas. She occasionally looked at the only other person there, a handsome man with stylish haircut, seemingly engrossed in a large book.

Of those within sight and sound of this couple only the receptionist knew. At that moment their son's heart was in the hands of Dr. Robert G. Allen in an upstairs operating room.

That was the way Mr. & Mrs. George Simmons of Charleston chose to live through the hours their son, Elliott, 8, was undergoing open-heart surgery, pioneereed in Memphis at Le Bonheur in 1959, using a mechanical heart pump.

This was the second surgery for the second grade lad.

Julie Simmons grew up with art. Her father is a commerical artist in Charleston and Julie teaches art there. She graduated from Murray State College in Kentucky. She is adapt with oils, water color and sculpts, too. But, for the still-life flower arrangement that day she chose the delicacy of water colors.

"I normally don't paint in tense situations. I just knew Elliott would be in surgery all morning, and although I could never take my mind off that fact, at least I'm keeping myself occupied."

The book her husband, 48, scowled over was not a whodunit or hisotircal novel. It was a tome on the intricacies of how to fly an airplane by reference only to instruments, bad weather flying. He'd flown to Memphis from Charleston and would be commuting throughout the week Elliott would be at Le Bonheur, while conducting affairs of Simmons Equipment Co., an International Harvester Co. dealership. George flies a recently acquired Cessna push-pull twin -engine aircraft, has logged some 700 flight hours and is studying for the written examination for an instrument rating. He graduated from the University of Missouri.

Le Bonheur Hospital has been a haven of hope before for young Elliott. Two years ago surgeons placed a shunt to drain fluid from his cranial cavity. Then, through a catherization procedure the truth was discovered about the heart defect: a hole between the upper chambers of the heart.

"It wasn't good news, but at least we knew then for sure," said the 33-year-old mother.

While waiting for word from the operating room the Simmonses also recalled how a little boy once startled a doctor at Le Bonheur, caused him to laugh. Elliott had wrapped a rubber snake around his chest under his shirt. Dr. J.T. Jabbour was caught in the trick when unbuttoning the boy's shirt for an examination. He remembered Elliott after that.

Now, the hours go slowly. The vase on the easel is nearly full of delicately-tinted blossoms. The book now has more pages read than to be read. It is nearly noon.

Suddenly, "Elliott's out of surgery. He's okay!"

It's the voice of Miss Sally Harrison Le Bonheur hostess' just a little breathless, although she's made such pronouncements many times before to many other parents.

George slowly closed the book and then his eyes, too.

Julie stood up, holding the canvas up to the sunlight coming in the waiting room window. "This is a memorable picture. I want it to be a good one.

Elliott was admitted to Le Bonheur April 11, returned home in time for Easter and went back to Hearnes Elementary School just nine days after his open-heart surgery.

Polly's Pointers

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with eating places that charge the same for coffee whether or not one drinks it black or uses expensive cream and sugar. I drink it black and think there should be a different price for those of us who do. — SALLIE.

DEAR POLLY — I have a suggestion for Mrs. L.S. who dislikes the way groceries are packed at the store and who would like to have all refrigerated or frozen items in one bag. I unpack my cart at the check-out counter so that all cold and frozen things are left until last. Then I ask the person who is packing to please put these things in one bag. I get results 90 per cent of the time but one needs to ask every time. — NANCY.

DEAR POLLY — When top stitching a garment you are making, especially when using a contrasting color, use two threads threaded through the needle at the same time. This also works very well when making machine-made buttonholes. — HELEN.

Ann Landers

Straying husbands: who's to blame?

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the column that made it very clear: a lot of husbands enjoy more than lunch during lunch hour.

I wonder, though, how many of those cheating husbands are married to women who fall into one of the following categories -- whenever he suggests making love, the answer is:

I have a headache.

I had my hair fixed today.

Is that all you ever think about?

The children are still up and they'll hear us.

My stomach is upset.

You must be a sex maniac. It was only last Thursday...

We aren't in our 20s, you know. Cool it, Dad.

If you insist, go ahead, but don't expect any help from me. I've had a terrible day and I'm dead tired.

How long has it been since that wife said:

I love you.

You're a wonderful bed partner.

I appreciate all the nice things you do for me.

Hurry to bed. I need you.

There are two sides to every story, Ann. -- Been There

Dear Been: Sometimes three. His side, her side, and the truth, which is usually somewhere in the middle. Thanks for a good letter.

Dear Ann Landers: Something I read in your column really hit home. It was from the young girl who was stunned when a customer came into the store where she was working and asked, "How old is your baby?" (The customer was staring at tthe stretch marks on the girl's stomach.) Too bad she had such ugly results from her pregnancy, but your reply was right on, Ann. No salesperson should wear a two-pieced outfit with her stomach exposed.

Now for my experience: I, too, was embarrassed by stretch marks, but the circumstances were quite different. I happened to be in a doctor's office for an examination. After I removed my clothes, the nurse came in. When she saw me she said, "Boy, have YOU got stretch marks! Man, I've never seen anything like THEM before!"

I was speechless. This happened a year ago and it's still fresh in my mind. Will you comment, please? -- Your Fan In Clinton, Iowa

Dear Fan: Too bad you didn't regain your composure in time to report the experience to the doctor. A nurse who doesn't have any better sense isn't qualified to work with patients.

Dear Ann: I stayed home from work today because I had the flu. My wife went to the drugstore so I answered the phone. Some man must have been trying to call the Coast Guard and got us by mistake. He wanted to know if the coast was clear. When I told my wife she got rattled. What do you think, Annie? -- Benzie

Dear B.: I kicked the slats out of my cradle when I heard that joke for the first time, and I'm no kid. Your letter came from Boston. I trust you made the Dean's list, Buddy.

There is a big difference between cold and cool. Ann Landers shows you how to play it cool without freezing people out in her booklet, "Teenage Sex -- Ten Ways to Cool It." Send 50 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Ann Landers,P. O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

"Mad Hungarian" gets fourth save of season

ATLANTA (AP) — "Sure, Al Hrabosky's tough, but if we are gonna win one one of these days, we'll have to beat the tough ones," said Dave Bristol, manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Hrabosky, ace reliever of the St. Louis Cardinals, left the Braves reeling with 10 straight defeats Thursday night when he stopped a ninth-inning rally as the Redbirds captured a 5-4 decision.

The Braves had runners at first and second with two down when Hrabosky was summoned to face pinch-hitter Lee Lacy. The "Mad Hungarian" fanned Lacy to record his fourth save of the year and second straight against Atlanta.

"I enjoy those situations with the game on the line," said Hrabosky. "If that situation comes up, I want in there."

Card Manager Red Schoendienst had no intention of using his ace reliever but was forced into it after lifting starter John Curtis, 2-2, following a one-out walk in the ninth.

The Braves then scored their two runs against relievers Harry Rasmussen, Mike Wallace and Mike Proly before Hrabosky got the final out.

"He's just great," Schoendienst said. "That's three nights in a row he's thrown here and that's pretty tough. Al would want to go every day, but I tried to give him a night off."

The Cardinals did most of their damage with a four-run explosion in the fifth inning off Carl Morton, 0-4. Vic Harris keyed it with a two-run single to center, Ted Simmons singled in another of the runs and the first run crossed on Lou Brock's high chop to the mound.

After Ken Henderson drove in Atlanta's first two runs with doubles in the fourth and sixth innings, the Cards scored what proved to be the deciding run in the eight when Willie Crawford singled and scored on Don Kessinger's double down the left field line.

The Cards had lost four in a row before sweeping the threegame set here and Harris figured prominently in the last two victories, getting four hits Wednesday night and three more Thursday night.

"It sure helps the average, but it certainly doesn't hurt the confidence," said Harris, obtained as a backup infielder from the Chicago Cubs. He was forced into a starting role when Mike Tyson was injured in the season's first series.

Three-time All-Stater "Frankie Boy" Robinson will play at Arkansas State

LILBOURN–Thursday night at 9:00 Frankie Robinson signed a national letter of intent to play college basketball for Arkansas University at Jonesboro.

"Frankie Boy" as he was nicknamed had been a starter for the Lilbourn Panthers since the third game of the season his freshman year. Since then his name has been a household word to roundball fans. "We won our first game of the that season but lost the second and I could see that we needed some changes", said former coach Larry Warren, now principal of Lilbourn High School. Robinson was inserted into the lineup and promptly responded with a 23 point performance.

Sinch the unexpected move by coach Warren, Frankie Robinson has been dazziling the southeast Missouri fans for the past four years. The 6-2 guard-forward improved his ball handling from his freshman to his sophomore year and led the Panthers to the state Class 2A basketball championship under the tutorship of coach Warren. Frankie so impressed the sportswriters and sportscasters in the state playoffs that he became the first Missouri high school players ever to be named to the all-state team as a sophomore.

Robinson became the Panther leader. Whenever the Panthers needed some points Frankie was the one they looked to. When they needed someone to take care of the ball under a pressure defense or to stall the game away Frankie was their boy.

As a junior Robinson led the Panthers to an undefeated season and a second straight state championship. He led the Panthers to the regional championship as a senior but Lilbourn lost to Clearwater in the second round of the state tournament.

As a freshman Robinson stepped into the starting lineup and averaged 15.3 points a game for 22 games. His sophomore year he averaged 16.6 points a game with his big game coming in the finals of the state tournament in which he dropped in 33 points and gained the attention of the media. As a junior Robinson increased his game average to 17.5 points and his senior year he averaged 22.7.

Robinson has been named to the all conference teams for four years. All District for four years. He was selected to the Daily Standard All-Star team for three years and named to all-state for three years.

At Arkansas State Robinson will be playing for first year coach Marvin Adams and assistants Gary Holland and Bill Tyer. Adams was the assistant coach at Kansas State last year.

Arkansas State University is a major college and this year under coach Adams will be playing some top flite competition.

The Indians are in the Southland conference with McNeese State, Louisiana Tech, U. of SWLA, Larma U., U. Tex. at Arlington. Included in the schedule this season will be a home and home game with SEMSU. Also on the schedule for next season will be Big Eight power Kansas State, Oklahoma State, North Texas State, Hardin Simmons, S. Mississippi, Pan American, NELA, NWLA, Rolla and Central Oklahoma.

Assistant coach Gary Holland said that Arkansas State was very high on Robinson. "I've been watching him for the past three years," said the former assistant coach at Three Rivers Junior College. "He's a good ball handler, a good shooter and good feeder", Holland commented. "We're just tickled to get such a good prospect at our guard position", He said.

Frankie Robinson holds pen in hand after signing a letter of Intent to attend Arkansas State University at Jonesboro, Arkansas to play basketball for the Indians and head coach Marvin Adams. Frankie's grandmother Arnell McFerron is sitting to the left of her famous grandson. Mrs. and Mrs. McFerron raised Frankie from six months of age. The McFerron family is famous for their basketball prowess in sotheast Missouri. Standing are shown left to right: Lilbourn coach Bob Phelps, ASU assistant coach Gary Holland and Lilbourn Principal Larry Warren.

Littell, Blaylock perform well

The Daily Standard has received the first reports on minor leaguer Steve Coulson of Fisk and on big leaguer Mark Littell of Gideon.

Littell, who surprised many by making the Kansas City Royals' roster this spring, is off to an outstanding start with the parent club after a couple of seasons at the Omaha farm team in the American Association. The hard throwing righthander has been used exclusively from the bullpen in the early going and has yet to allow an earned run in six appearances and ten innings of work. Littell, who earned his first save of the season Wednesday night at Boston, has given up only six hits, striking out 11 and walking only five. Manager Whitey Herzog has indicated that Littell may earn a starting assignment before long.

Galen McSpadden of Puxico, working for the Padres' AAA club at Hawaii in the Pacific Coast League, continues to struggle on the mound in the early going. McSpadden is 0-1 with an ERA of 5.82 after three appearances.

Coulson, playing with the Yankees' West Haven team in the AA Eastern League, is hitting only .226 after the first week of play but is leading the league in triples with two. Coulson has driven in seven runs.

Malden's Gary Blaylock continued his good hitting for the Royals' Jacksonvile club in the AA Southern League. Blaylock's averaged dipped to .303 after going 4 for 17 last week, but two of the four safeties were home runs.

The minor league statistics are provided by Player Periscope of Novato, California, while Mark Littell's statistics were provided by the Kansas City Royals' front office.

Celtics keep on winning

BOSTON (AP) — The mighty Boston Celtics are off and running in the National Basketball Association's Eastern Conference championship playoff, and there's no doubt Cleveland's upstart Cavaliers have their work cut out.

The Celtics built a whopping 16-point lead in the first half, withstood a furious Cleveland comeback for a 77-77 tie after three periods and then exploded in the final quarter for a 111-99 victory Thursday night in the best-of-seven series opener.

The third game of the Western Conference final playoffs will be played tonight at Phoenix with the Suns and the Golden State Warriors tied at 1-1 in their best-of-seven series.

"We played well for about three quarters of the game," Boston Coach Tommy Heinsohn said. "In the third period we just played putridly. We let 'em back in the ball game, but we won and that's the big thing."

"No one thing plagued us more than another — unless it was the guys running around in the green and white uniforms," Cleveland Coach Bill Fitch said. "Without (injured) Jim Chones, we definitely are a different basketball team.

"But I didn't think we were going to fall dead. I honestly thought we could win. We had our chance and didn't get the job done. Fortunately, it's a seven-game series.

"We'll get together tomorrow (today), do some shooting and go over the films. We won't try to make any major changes. We'll just try to do our own things better in the next game Sunday."

Chones suffered a broken toe in practice Tuesday and is sidelined for the series. He watched from the bench, his right foot in a cast, while veteran Nate Thurmond was forced to play 39 minutes. Thurmond grabbed 16 rebounds, but scored only nine points.

Thurmond also held Boston center Dave Cowens to 14 points. However, forwards John Havlicek and Paul Silas scored 26 and 21 points, respectively, and Jo Jo White hit for 20 from the backcourt position.

"You don't break our spirit easily," said Dick Snyder after matching Cleveland teammate Campy Russell's 21-point production. "Nobody will quit. We'll just have to work harder Sunday."

Nicklaus draws first golfing penalty ever

DALLAS (AP) — "I'm sorry," said Byron Nelson.

"Anything you can do about it?" asked Jack Nicklaus.

"No," replied Nelson.

"It was just one of those things," sighed Nicklaus.

"You have a great attitude," said Nelson, adding with a smile: "Besides being a helluva golfer."

The brief exchange Thursday involved a mysterious mishap that cost Nicklaus a two-shot penalty and left him five strokes behind the leader after the first round of the $200,000 Byron Nelson Golf Classic.

Mark Hayes, a non-winner, stole the glory and Nicklaus got the gaff as he set out in quest of his third Nelson title and the $40,000 top prize.

While Hayes was capturing a one-shot lead over three veteran challengers, Nicklaus was trying to shake off his first penalty ever for carrying too many clubs in his bag.

Hayes, often a title contender but not yet a champion in four years on the tour, forged a five-under-par 66 and moved into the second round today with a stroke edge over Forrest Fezler, Don Bies and Marty Fleckman.

A stroke back was a quintet comprised of John Schlee, Dave Eichelberger, Eddie Pearce, Bob Smith and Tom Kite. Within easy striking distance at 69 was a group headed by Lee Trevino, Tony Jacklin and Don January.

Defending champion Tom Watson, Masters champ Ray Floyd, two-time tour winner Ben Crenshaw and veteran Tom Weiskopf topped the 70 shooters while it was Nicklaus and Arnold Palmer among the 71 group.

"I guess I will have to go back to school and learn to count," said Nicklaus, who, after a few irate moments, seemed to accept the penalty without undue distress.

The club, which mysteriously appeared in his bag, belonged to David Graham and was a pitching wedge which Nicklaus said he examined on the practice tee, then laid down across a bucket of balls to keep the grip from getting wet.

"I counted my clubs on the first tee as I always do, and so did my caddy ...," Nicklaus said. "I don't know how it got in there. It might have slipped under a head cover, someone might have slipped it in my bag after I had counted my clubs...."

EP City council okays April reports

EAST PRAIRIE-In a brief meeting Thursday night, the East Prairie City Council approved reports for the month of April and gave City Cerk Webb De Field permission to pay the bills.

The collector's report presented to the council showed a total of $29,129.69 had been collected during the month of April, with police fines during the month recorded at $1,077.55. Accounts payable were reported at $11,174.87.

The routine business meeting was adjourned after the council authorized Defield to pay outstanding accounts.

Scott City probes plan for new city hall-fire station

SCOTT CITY- Possibilities of securing a new city hall or fire station here were discsssed when the City Council met Tuesday night in continuation of a lengthy Monday session.

Pat O'Brien, a council member, was named to head a committee to investigate the likelihood of federal funding for such a project. The city hall and fire station are currently housed in the same building, where space has become a big problem.

The council decided to pay dog warden John Kosharek a $100 per month, rather than on a per-dog fee, and instructed him to turn in reports and copies of summons with each pickup. The council said when a dog is to be destroyed, a member of the police force will accompany Kosharek.

June 1-4 has been designated as City Clean-up Week, and city crews will make front-curb pickup of miscellaneous trash items during that period.

City Attorney Tom Arnold advised the council that Arlie Jackson does not have to do commercial trash hauling for the city if someone else will do it, according to city ordinances. Jackson was recently awarded the contract for residential trash hauling.

The council voted to have the city treasurer attend one council meeting per month when bills are discussed. He will be paid $10 for attending the session. The city clerk's salary was set at $450 per month.

Delta Asphalt Co. will oil the Ruth street entrance to the new city park, continuing through the park to the Nellie street entrance. Cost of oiling is 60 cents per gallon. The swimming pool will open May 29, and Butler Associates will make its final inspection of the pool at 11 a. m. May 26.

Larry Angle requested that a piece of culvert be installed on his property. He agreed to pay for the culvert, and the city will do the work. The council said the second half of culvert on Crites and Ellis will be installed and that road restored.

A request was heard from representatives of the Little League for contributions to offset lighting expenses. The council said it will match Illmo's donation when that sum is announced.

Kennett man is fatally shot in gun accident

KENNETT-Ronald Dean Neel, 35, of Kennett Route Two was fatally wounded Tuesday in a gun accident at his home, according to the Dunklin County Sheriff's Department.

The accident, according to Deputy Juston Huggins, resulted when Neel was killed when a shotgun his 15-year-old-daugher was carrying to him discharged when the child tripped.

Officers said Neel was outside his home about 9:30 p.m. Monday when he called to his daughter to bring him his 20-gauge shotgun, which he was going to use to scare away some wild animals which had been disturbing some ducks at his home.

As the girl was carrying the gun, loaded with No. 8 shot, to her father, she stumbled coming out the door, causing the gun to discharge and strike the man in the left side of the chest.

Neel was dead on arrival at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital, authorities said.

"Mad Hungarian" gets fourth save of season

ATLANTA (AP) — "Sure, Al Hrabosky's tough, but if we are gonna win one one of these days, we'll have to beat the tough ones," said Dave Bristol, manager of the Atlanta Braves.

Hrabosky, ace reliever of the St. Louis Cardinals, left the Braves reeling with 10 straight defeats Thursday night when he stopped a ninth-inning rally as the Redbirds captured a 5-4 decision.

The Braves had runners at first and second with two down when Hrabosky was summoned to face pinch-hitter Lee Lacy. The "Mad Hungarian" fanned Lacy to record his fourth save of the year and second straight against Atlanta.

"I enjoy those situations with the game on the line," said Hrabosky. "If that situation comes up, I want in there."

Card Manager Red Schoendienst had no intention of using his ace reliever but was forced into it after lifting starter John Curtis, 2-2, following a one-out walk in the ninth.

The Braves then scored their two runs against relievers Harry Rasmussen, Mike Wallace and Mike Proly before Hrabosky got the final out.

"He's just great," Schoendienst said. "That's three nights in a row he's thrown here and that's pretty tough. Al would want to go every day, but I tried to give him a night off."

The Cardinals did most of their damage with a four-run explosion in the fifth inning off Carl Morton, 0-4. Vic Harris keyed it with a two-run single to center, Ted Simmons singled in another of the runs and the first run crossed on Lou Brock's high chop to the mound.

After Ken Henderson drove in Atlanta's first two runs with doubles in the fourth and sixth innings, the Cards scored what proved to be the deciding run in the eight when Willie Crawford singled and scored on Don Kessinger's double down the left field line.

The Cards had lost four in a row before sweeping the threegame set here and Harris figured prominently in the last two victories, getting four hits Wednesday night and three more Thursday night.

"It sure helps the average, but it certainly doesn't hurt the confidence," said Harris, obtained as a backup infielder from the Chicago Cubs. He was forced into a starting role when Mike Tyson was injured in the season's first series.

The group travels thousands of miles annually conducting services and concerts in churches and auditoriums all across the United States and Canada. One of the highlights of their ministry came during March when their dream of working on a mission field became a reality in a revival crusade in Montego Bay, Jamaica. Their programs appeal to people of all ages.

First Nazarene plans revival

Revival services will begin Tuesday and continue nightly at 7 o'clock through May 16 at First Church of the Nazarene, Highway 61 North, the Rev. Eldon Russell, pastor, has announced.

The evangelist will be the Rev. Paul Martin of Berkeley, Calif., and the song leader will be the Rev. Gene Hinze, a Sikeston music evangelist.

In addition to being a well-known evangelist, the Rev. Mr. Martin is experienced in the pastoral and Christian journalism fields. He also has been the featured speaker at many camp meetings, youth camps, union revivals, district tours and military preaching missions.

In 1966 and 1969, the Rev. Mr. Martin toured with the Nazarene Evangelistic Ambassadors in South America and Europe. He also has spoken twice at the International Institute for Nazarene Youth at Estes Park, Colo.

Many have come to know him through articles in church periodicals and his books, "Life in a Nazarene Parsonage", "Teen-ager, You Can Be a Christian Too", "Good Morning, Lord", "Get Up and Go" and others.

New U.S. cardinal has Missouri ties

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) — Although the newest American Cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church is tagged a Texan, the fact is that Archbishop William Wakefield Baum has spent most of his 49 years in Missouri.

Nearly all of his student years were spent in Kansas City and St. Louis. His first pastorate was in Kansas City. Before he was named Archbishop of Washington, he was bishop of the Springfield-Cape Girardeau diocese, which embraces the southern one-fourth of Missouri.

A former classmate at Kenrick Seminary in St. Louis, the Rev. Frowin Brownfield, is pastor of St. Ann's Church at nearby Malden in southeast Missouri's Bootheel.

"We all knew then he would become a bishop and would go as high as he could," Father Brownfield said.

He was speaking of the days between 1947 and 1951 when Baum was making perfect grades at Kenrick.

Baum's successor as head of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Bishop Bernard Law, and Father Brownfield will be among those going to Rome for the consistory at which Archbishop Baum will receive the red cap of a cardinal.

He started his college training at St. John's School in Kansas City and graduated with honors in 1947 from St. Louis

Archbishop William Baum

Preparatory Seminary. His first assignment after ordination on May 3, 1951, was as associate pastor of St. Aloysious parish in Kansas City.

He subsequently was assigned to the school office of the Kansas City-St. Joseph Diocese and became assistant superintendent of schools.

After a year at Gregorian University in Rome, where he obtained his doctoratein sacred theology in half the usual time, he became assistant chancellor and then chancellor of the Kansas City-St. Joseph Diocese.

Services at Calvary to recognize mothers

Mother's Day activities Sunday at Calvary Assembly, located at the corner of Scott and Trotter Streets, will include special recognition of four mothers and the music ministry of the Latinos, according to the pastor, T. A. McDonough.

The youth of the church will reveal who was chosen as Mother Of The Year and honor her with a dozen roses in the morning service. Other mothers to be given special recognition will be the mother with the best Sunday School attendance record during the past year, the one with the most relatives present and the one that brings the most visitors to Sunday School with her on Mother's day.

These mothers will be recognized during the morning services. Sunday School begins at 9:30 and the preaching service at 10:30. The pastor's sermon topic will be "The Greatest Need of a Christian Mother."

The evening service at 7 o'clock will host the Latinos, a professional Spanish group from California dedicated to the ministry of gospel music. This group also will give testimonies of their experiences with the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mike Velasquez, regarded in some quarter as the best guitarist in gospel music today, was in the professional entertainment field for many years. Harold Velasquez, is the emcee and preacher of the group and plays the bass. Judy Romero, a blind girl pianist who arranges, composes and sings harmony worked for the Holiday Inn as a professional pianist before her conversion.

Ronnie Velasquez, sings tenor and plays the congas, Leroy Velasquez plays the lead guitar and Ron "Be Be" Robertson plays the drums for the group.

UMC attendance tops 141,000 on Easter

ST. LOUIS, — Worship attendance in United Methodist Churches in Missouri on Easter Sunday was 141,368, compared to an average Lenten attendance of 91,334. This increase is usually written off to the once or twice a year churchgoer. However, looking more closely, United Methodist officials feel here is another fact to be seen.

They are convinced that Easter attendance is a more reliable count of the church's strength than the average Snday attendance. The high attendance on Easter may more likely be based on the fact that on this day all the church members who attend with any regularity at all "hit" on the same Sunday.

Most pastors note a sporadic pattern of church attendance which may mean the average church member attends two of any four Sundays. When all these sporadic patterns combine on one Sunday, a significantly larger attendance results. Clergymen seem to feel that the Easter attendance is therefore a real indicator of the total attendance possibility of the church.

The growing strength of the small group movement during the Lenten period was reflected in a 128 per cent increase in the number ofpersons who gathered for Bible study or prayer: form little more than 25,645 to 58,595 Easter week. Sunday School attendance showed a 6.7 per cent increase since mid-March and 283 new classes were formed.

Missouri's 1,100 United Methodist churches welcomed over 4,189 new members during Lent. The state's United Methodist churches submitted detailed reports of their numbers and activities for each week during Lent.

Church beset by piano thieves

JESSIEVILLE, Ark.— The 80-member congregation of Marble Missionary Baptist Church has posted a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of piano thieves.

Two church pianos have been stolen in eight months.

The first piano, a walnut console, was stolen from the isolated church in September.

To prevent another theft, the church bolted its second piano, a grand console model, to the floor. But thieves crawled under the floor of the church and revmoved the bolts, church clerk Vernelle Ragsdale said.

"It's pretty bad," Mrs. Ragsdale said.

The church, near the Garland-Saline county line, is using a piano loaned by one of the members.

Scott City probes plan for new city hall-fire station

SCOTT CITY- Possibilities of securing a new city hall or fire station here were discsssed when the City Council met Tuesday night in continuation of a lengthy Monday session.

Pat O'Brien, a council member, was named to head a committee to investigate the likelihood of federal funding for such a project. The city hall and fire station are currently housed in the same building, where space has become a big problem.

The council decided to pay dog warden John Kosharek a $100 per month, rather than on a per-dog fee, and instructed him to turn in reports and copies of summons with each pickup. The council said when a dog is to be destroyed, a member of the police force will accompany Kosharek.

June 1-4 has been designated as City Clean-up Week, and city crews will make front-curb pickup of miscellaneous trash items during that period.

The council voted to have the city treasurer attend one council meeting per month when bills are discussed. He will be paid $10 for attending the session. The city clerk's salary was set at $450 per month.

Delta Asphalt Co. will oil the Ruth street entrance to the new city park, continuing through the park to the Nellie street entrance. Cost of oiling is 60 cents per gallon. The swimming pool will open May 29, and Butler Associates will make its final inspection of the pool at 11 a.. m. May 26.

Kennett man is fatally shot in gun accident

KENNETT-Ronald Dean Neel, 35, of Kennett Route Two was fatally wounded Tuesday in a gun accident at his home, according to the Dunklin County Sheriff's Department.

The accident, according to Deputy Juston Huggins, resulted when Neel was killed when a shotgun his 15-year-old-daugher was carrying to him discharged when the child tripped.

Officers said Neel was outside his home about 9:30 p.m. Monday when he called to his daughter to bring him his 20-gauge shotgun, which he was going to use to scare away some wild animals which had been disturbing some ducks at his home.

As the girl was carrying the gun, loaded with No. 8 shot, to her father, she stumbled coming out the door, causing the gun to discharge and strike the man in the left side of the chest.

Neel was dead on arrival at Dunklin County Memorial Hospital, authorities said.

What's the law?

The case of the hiccups

Bessie entered a taxi with all the stability of an elegant lady bording a dinghy in the Atlantic Ocean during a hurricane.

What's more, she had a bad case of the hiccups, and she didn't get them emptying teacups in a ladies' club. She had been boozing it up in several bars and had consumed enough "wheelbarrows" to cause her to wobble like one. When she finally arrived at her destination, she found the seas no less stormy.

The result: When she opened the cab door to get out, she hiccupped once and fell straight forward into a large pubble of water.

When dried out, Bessie sued the owner of the taxi company for the injuries she suffered in falling.

"Considering my delicate condition at the time," Bessie told the judge, the cab driver should have shown me a little gallantry. He should have helped me from his vehicle."

"Not me!" responded the cab driver. "I have enough trouble handling women when they're sober. To have gotten involved with one as inevriated as Bessie was fraught with danger. Under the circumstances, gallantry would have been stupidity."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the owner of the cab company liable for Bessie's injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a cab company must exercise the highest degree of care for the safety of its passengers. If a passenger is intoxicated, concluded the judge, the cab driver must assist the passenger in leaving his vehicle.

NBC strike enters 37th day

NEW YORK (AP) — Today is the 37th day of the strike against NBC by 1,700 of its technicians, engineers and news writers who belong to the National Association of Broadcast Employes and Technicians.

And while NBC says it is "hopeful of a settlement that will be satisfactory to both sides," Ed Lynch, president of NABET, is anything but hopeful about prospects for a quick end to the strike.

"The outlook is like forever," he said this week by phone from Washington, where NABET and NBC have conducted hard-nosed bargaining in the presence of a federal mediator since April 8.

"The problem as I see it is that this thing has turned into a lockout," he said, referring to NBC's refusal to let the strikers follow their union's April 7 order to return to work during negotiations.

On that day, NBC filed a $550,000 federal court suit against NABET and its New York local, charging the union with sabotage of NBC equipment on the eve of the strike and a subsequent loss of revenue.

NBC, asked about the "lockout" charge, contends the strikers can't work without a contract. It has told NABET that even were the union's old contract extended — it expired April 1 — they couldn't return to work until the union had answered "the vital questions of protection against further sabotage...."

NABET, which denied the sabotage charge, filed a $10-million damage suit against NBC in a state court here Thursday. It alleged the network had libeled the union and "maliciously" sued it in federal court.

Meanwhile, management personnel are still working in place of the NABET picketers still marching outside NBC facilities in New York, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco and Burbank, Calif.

The issues of the strike range from money to whether "daily hires" — cameramen hired by the day to cover breaking stories outside the five cities where NBC owns TV stations — come under NABET jurisdiction.

Celebrities to proclaim alcoholism

WASHINGTON (AP) — An astronaut, a television executive, a member of England's House of Lords and an Indian chief are among 55 VIPs who plan to announce they are alcoholics.

The revelation will come Saturday at a news conference and an "Operation Understanding" banquet, both sponsored bythe National Council on Alcoholism.

A few public figures, like actor Dick Van Dyke, actress Mercedes McCambridge, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills and former Sen. Harold Hughes have already acknowledged alcoholism problems.

But, according to a council statement, "this will be the first time that so many celebrities will have identified themselves publicly as recovered alcoholics."

The organization hopes that the unprecedented group appearance "will do more to reduce alcoholism stigma than anything ever attempted. We hope to correct the misconception that the typical alcoholic is found on skid row."

"If a man is told by a doctor that he is an alcoholic, he often is hostile," says council spokesman Walter J. Murphy. "But if he reads in the paper that a well-known person has recovered, he can identify with that person and seek help."

The prominent persons identifying themselves as recovered alcoholics will include entertainment, sports and political figures, clergymen, journalists and businessmen. Names have been withheld until the news conference.

The news conference and banquet are part of the 1976 National Alcoholism Forum, which is expected to attract more than 1,500 alcoholism experts from around the country.

Sponsored by the council, it begins today and runs through May 12.

The organization has estimated that 10 million Americans are alcoholics.

Nashville group to sing

The Chuck Jackson Singers from Nashville, Tenn., will appear at First Church of the Nazarene, Highway 61 North, at 9:45 a.m. Sunday. The group travels thousands of miles annually conducting services and concerts in churches and auditoriums all across the United States and Canada. One of the highlights of their ministry came during March when their dream of working on a mission field became a reality in a revival crusade in Montego Bay, Jamaica. Their programs appeal to people of all ages.

First Nazarene plans revival

Revival services will begin Tuesday and continue nightly at 7 o'clock through May 16 at First Church of the Nazarene, Highway 61 North, the Rev. Eldon Russell, pastor, has announced.

The evangelist will be the Rev. Paul Martin of Berkeley, Calif., and the song leader will be the Rev. Gene Hinze, a Sikeston music evangelist.

In addition to being a well-known evangelist, the Rev. Mr. Martin is experienced in the pastoral and Christian journalism fields. He also has been the featured speaker at many camp meetings, youth camps, union revivals, district tours and military preaching missions.

In 1966 and 1969, the Rev. Mr. Martin toured with the Nazarene Evangelistic Ambassadors in South America and Europe. He also has spoken twice at the International Institute for Nazarene Youth at Estes Park, Colo.

Many have come to know him through articles in church periodicals and his books, "Life in a Nazarene Parsonage", "Teen-ager, You Can Be a Christian Too", "Good Morning, Lord", "Get Up and Go" and others.

New U.S. cardinal has Missouri ties

KENNETT, Mo. (AP) — Although the newest American Cardinal of the Roman Catholic Church is tagged a Texan, the fact is that Archbishop William Wakefield Baum has spent most of his 49 years in Missouri.

Nearly all of his student years were spent in Kansas City and St. Louis. His first pastorate was in Kansas City. Before he was named Archbishop of Washington, he was bishop of the Springfield-Cape Girardeau diocese, which embraces the southern one-fourth of Missouri.

A former classmate at Kenrick Seminary in St. Louis, the Rev. Frowin Brownfield, is pastor of St. Ann's Church at nearby Malden in southeast Missouri's Bootheel.

"We all knew then he would become a bishop and would go as high as he could," Father Brownfield said.

He was speaking of the days between 1947 and 1951 when Baum was making perfect grades at Kenrick.

Baum's successor as head of Springfield-Cape Girardeau, Bishop Bernard Law, and Father Brownfield will be among those going to Rome for the consistory at which Archbishop Baum will receive the red cap of a cardinal.

He started his college training at St. John's School in Kansas City and graduated with honors in 1947 from St. Louis

Archbishop William Baum

Preparatory Seminary. His first assignment after ordination on May 3, 1951, was as associate pastor of St. Aloysious parish in Kansas City.

He subsequently was assigned to the school office of the Kansas City-St. Joseph Diocese and became assistant superintendent of schools.

After a year at Gregorian University in Rome, where he obtained his doctoratein sacred theology in half the usual time, he became assistant chancellor and then chancellor of the Kansas City-St. Joseph Diocese.

Services at Calvary to recognize mothers

Mother's Day activities Sunday at Calvary Assembly, located at the corner of Scott and Trotter Streets, will include special recognition of four mothers and the music ministry of the Latinos, according to the pastor, T. A. McDonough.

The youth of the church will reveal who was chosen as Mother Of The Year and honor her with a dozen roses in the morning service. Other mothers to be given special recognition will be the mother with the best Sunday School attendance record during the past year, the one with the most relatives present and the one that brings the most visitors to Sunday School with her on Mother's day.

These mothers will be recognized during the morning services. Sunday School begins at 9:30 and the preaching service at 10:30. The pastor's sermon topic will be "The Greatest Need of a Christian Mother."

The evening service at 7 o'clock will host the Latinos, a professional Spanish group from California dedicated to the ministry of gospel music. This group also will give testimonies of their experiences with the Lord Jesus Christ.

Mike Velasquez, regarded in some quarter as the best guitarist in gospel music today, was in the professional entertainment field for many years. Harold Velasquez, is the emcee and preacher of the group and plays the bass. Judy Romero, a blind girl pianist who arranges, composes and sings harmony worked for the Holiday Inn as a professional pianist before her conversion.

Ronnie Velasquez, sings tenor and plays the congas, Leroy Velasquez plays the lead guitar and Ron "Be Be" Robertson plays the drums for the group.

UMC attendance tops 141,000 on Easter

ST. LOUIS, — Worship attendance in United Methodist Churches in Missouri on Easter Sunday was 141,368, compared to an average Lenten attendance of 91,334. This increase is usually written off to the once or twice a year churchgoer. However, looking more closely, United Methodist officials feel here is another fact to be seen.

They are convinced that Easter attendance is a more reliable count of the church's strength than the average Snday attendance. The high attendance on Easter may more likely be based on the fact that on this day all the church members who attend with any regularity at all "hit" on the same Sunday.

Most pastors note a sporadic pattern of church attendance which may mean the average church member attends two of any four Sundays. When all these sporadic patterns combine on one Sunday, a significantly larger attendance results. Clergymen seem to feel that the Easter attendance is therefore a real indicator of the total attendance possibility of the church.

The growing strength of the small group movement during the Lenten period was reflected in a 128 per cent increase in the number ofpersons who gathered for Bible study or prayer: form little more than 25,645 to 58,595 Easter week. Sunday School attendance showed a 6.7 per cent increase since mid-March and 283 new classes were formed.

Missouri's 1,100 United Methodist churches welcomed over 4,189 new members during Lent. The state's United Methodist churches submitted detailed reports of their numbers and activities for each week during Lent.

Church beset by piano thieves

JESSIEVILLE, Ark.— The 80-member congregation of Marble Missionary Baptist Church has posted a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of piano thieves.

Two church pianos have been stolen in eight months.

The first piano, a walnut console, was stolen from the isolated church in September.

To prevent another theft, the church bolted its second piano, a grand console model, to the floor. But thieves crawled under the floor of the church and revmoved the bolts, church clerk Vernelle Ragsdale said.

"It's pretty bad," Mrs. Ragsdale said.

The church, near the Garland-Saline county line, is using a piano loaned by one of the members.

PAGE 1: Find Cape Hatteras on a map. Talk about the fact that the waters off the Cape are known as the "Graveyard of the Atlantic" because so many ships have sunk here. Using cardboard tubes and boxes, see if you can't reconstruct a small model of the Monitor.

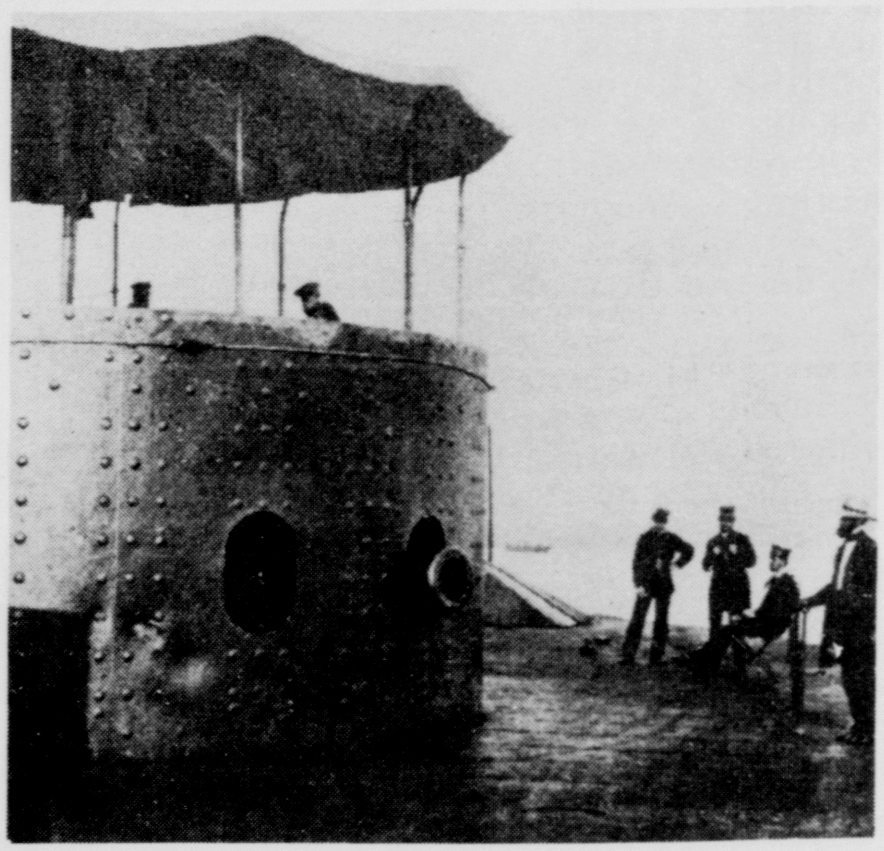
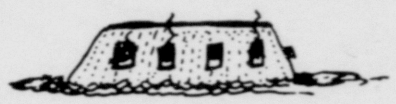
1862 Super Battleships



Near the center of the Monitor was a revolving turret that was to serve as the idea for the modern-day battleship turret. It was 9 feet high, 20 feet across and it had 9-inch-thick armor. There were two guns inside.

The Merrimac



The Confederate navy knew it was no match for the Federal ships. It came up with the idea of the first ironclad ship, The Merrimac. She was made from a Federal ship that had been sunk and raised. Below her deck was the same old steering gear that had never worked well. The top of the ship was completely changed. The slanted walls were 7 feet high and covered with 4-inch armor of steel-plate.

The Monitor

The Monitor was five times smaller than the Merrimac. The Monitor carried two guns, the Merrimac 10. The Monitor had a crew of only 58, while the Merrimac had 320. Despite the differences in size, the Monitor had an advantage because her revolving guns could fire from any angle. The Merrimac had to be moved into position to fire. The Monitor's draft (how much of her was underwater) was 10 feet. The Merrimac's was 23 feet.

The Battle

The strange ships met in battle only once, on Sunday, March 9, 1862. The battle lasted for four long hours. At one time, the ships were so close together than an active man could have jumped across. But the battle of the ironclads ended in a draw. Both ships limped away.

On May 10, 1862, the Confederates abandoned the Merrimac and set her afire in order to keep her from falling into the hands of the enemy.

What's the law?

The case of the hiccups

Bessie entered a taxi with all the stability of an elegant lady bording a dinghy in the Atlantic Ocean during a hurricane.

What's more, she had a bad case of the hiccups, and she didn't get them emptying teacups in a ladies' club. She had been boozing it up in several bars and had consumed enough "wheelbarrows" to cause her to wobble like one. When she finally arrived at her destination, she found the seas no less stormy.

The result: When she opened the cab door to get out, she hiccupped once and fell straight forward into a large pubble of water.

When dried out, Bessie sued the owner of the taxi company for the injuries she suffered in falling.

"Considering my delicate condition at the time," Bessie told the judge, the cab driver should have shown me a little gallantry. He should have helped me from his vehicle."

"Not me!" responded the cab driver. "I have enough trouble handling women when they're sober. To have gotten involved with one as inevriated as Bessie was fraught with danger. Under the circumstances, gallantry would have been stupidity."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the owner of the cab company liable for Bessie's injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: YES! The judge held that a cab company must exercise the highest degree of care for the safety of its passengers. If a passenger is intoxicated, concluded the judge, the cab driver must assist the passenger in leaving his vehicle.

NBC strike enters 37th day

NEW YORK (AP) — Today is the 37th day of the strike against NBC by 1,700 of its technicians, engineers and news writers who belong to the National Association of Broadcast Employes and Technicians.

And while NBC says it is "hopeful of a settlement that will be satisfactory to both sides," Ed Lynch, president of NABET, is anything but hopeful about prospects for a quick end to the strike.

"The outlook is like forever," he said this week by phone from Washington, where NABET and NBC have conducted hard-nosed bargaining in the presence of a federal mediator since April 8.

"The problem as I see it is that this thing has turned into a lockout," he said, referring to NBC's refusal to let the strikers follow their union's April 7 order to return to work during negotiations.

On that day, NBC filed a $550,000 federal court suit against NABET and its New York local, charging the union with sabotage of NBC equipment on the eve of the strike and a subsequent loss of revenue.

NBC, asked about the "lockout" charge, contends the strikers can't work without a contract. It has told NABET that even were the union's old contract extended — it expired April 1 — they couldn't return to work until the union had answered "the vital questions of protection against further sabotage...."

NABET, which denied the sabotage charge, filed a $10-million damage suit against NBC in a state court here Thursday. It alleged the network had libeled the union and "maliciously" sued it in federal court.

Meanwhile, management personnel are still working in place of the NABET picketers still marching outside NBC facilities in New York, Washington, Cleveland, Chicago, San Francisco and Burbank, Calif.

The issues of the strike range from money to whether "daily hires" — cameramen hired by the day to cover breaking stories outside the five cities where NBC owns TV stations — come under NABET jurisdiction.

Celebrities to proclaim alcoholism

WASHINGTON (AP) — An astronaut, a television executive, a member of England's House of Lords and an Indian chief are among 55 VIPs who plan to announce they are alcoholics.

The revelation will come Saturday at a news conference and an "Operation Understanding" banquet, both sponsored bythe National Council on Alcoholism.

A few public figures, like actor Dick Van Dyke, actress Mercedes McCambridge, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills and former Sen. Harold Hughes have already acknowledged alcoholism problems.

But, according to a council statement, "this will be the first time that so many celebrities will have identified themselves publicly as recovered alcoholics."

The organization hopes that the unprecedented group appearance "will do more to reduce alcoholism stigma than anything ever attempted. We hope to correct the misconception that the typical alcoholic is found on skid row."

"If a man is told by a doctor that he is an alcoholic, he often is hostile," says council spokesman Walter J. Murphy. "But if he reads in the paper that a well-known person has recovered, he can identify with that person and seek help."

The prominent persons identifying themselves as recovered alcoholics will include entertainment, sports and political figures, clergymen, journalists and businessmen. Names have been withheld until the news conference.

The news conference and banquet are part of the 1976 National Alcoholism Forum, which is expected to attract more than 1,500 alcoholism experts from around the country.

Sponsored by the council, it begins today and runs through May 12.

The organization has estimated that 10 million Americans are alcoholics.

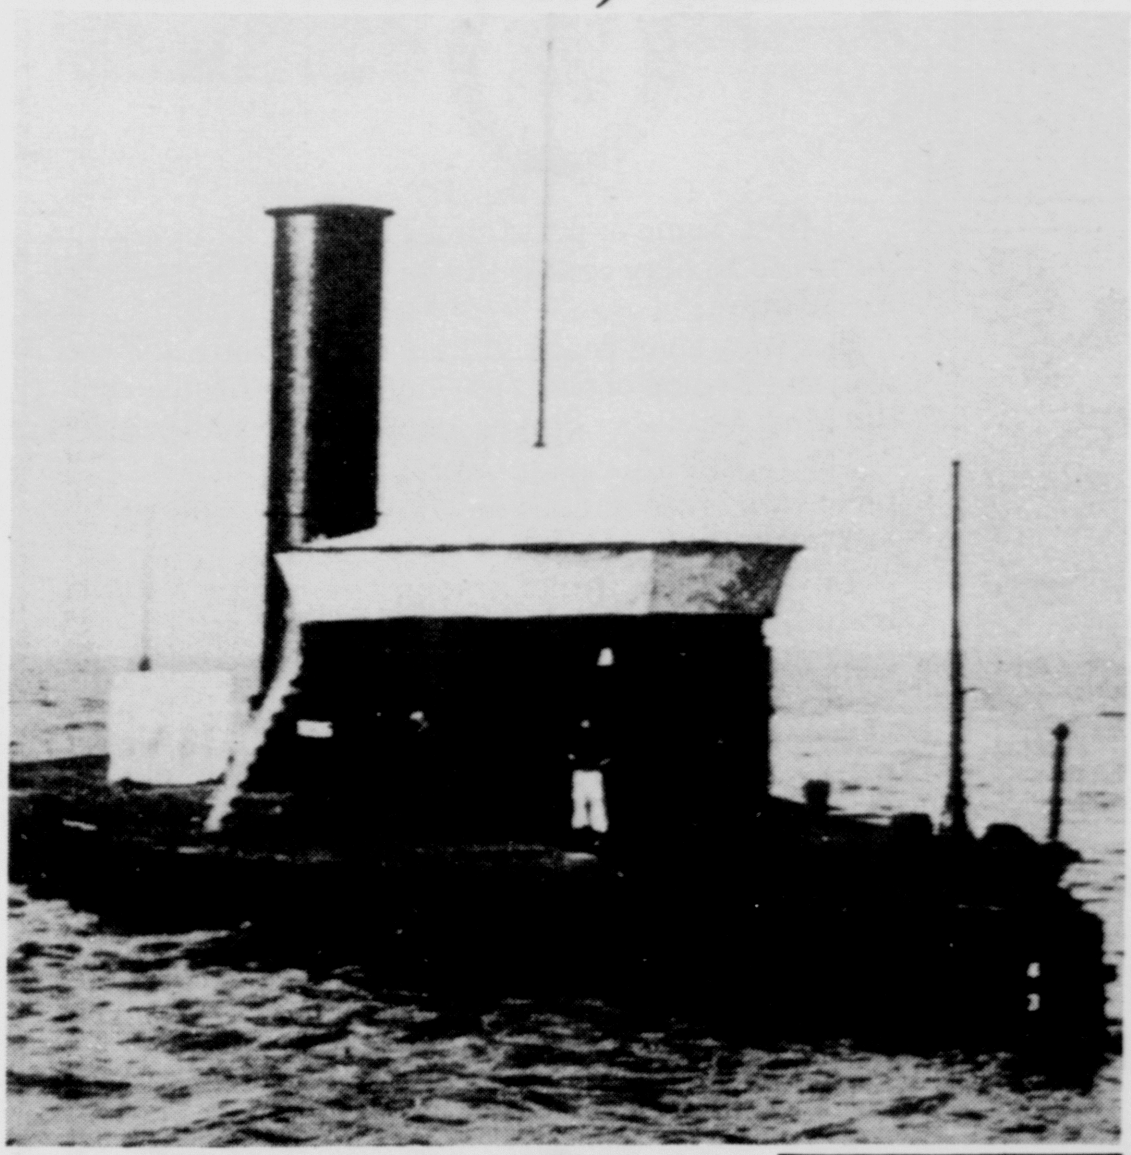
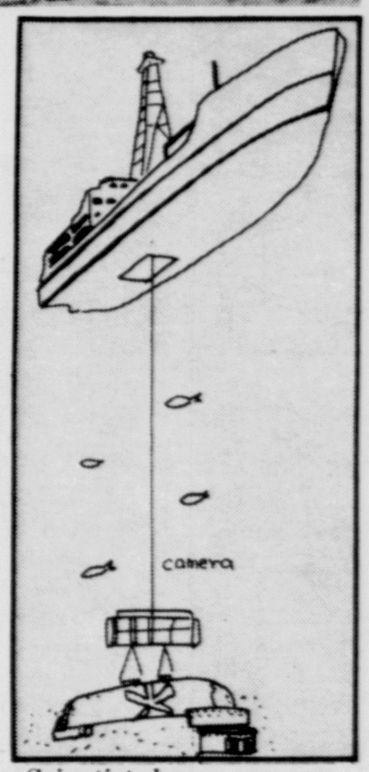
A Special Law Protects

The Monitor, Our Underwater Treasure



The Monitor was called a "cheesebox on a raft." She was the first ship built of iron. (Photos courtesy the State Department of Archives and History in Raleigh, North Carolina.)

The ship Rhode Island stands by without being able to help as the Monitor begins to sink in rough waters on December 31, 1862.



Scientists lower cameras to take pictures of the fragile Monitor.

In the waters, some 17 miles off the coast of Cape Hatteras, North Carolina, there is a very special spot. The spot is so unusual that the government has named it our country's first Marine Sanctuary (a sanctuary is a protected place).

The government took this action to stop looters, treasure hunters or just curious people from disturbing what lies 220 feet below the surface, the famous ironclad Union gunboat, the Monitor.

The Monitor was important because it marked the switch from wood to iron construction and sail to steam power. Future war vessels were patterned after this Civil War ship.

Underwater archaeologists (archaeologists are people who study the remains of past human activities) have been looking for the Monitor for years. The ship did not sink in battle. She went down in rough seas in December of 1862. It was so hard to find the wreck because it sank in what is known as "The Graveyard of the Atlantic," a spot where many ships have gone down.

After the archaeologists discovered the Monitor in 1973, they lowered cameras to take pictures. They did not want to touch it because it is so fragile. It has been underwater for over 110 years.

Some people would like to try to bring up the Monitor. Others say it would not be a good idea since the ship would most likely break into pieces. Scientists want to study it more. They want to find out what secrets this famous old ship has locked inside.

For Parents 'n Teachers

This part of the Mini Page is especially designed to help parents and teachers when teaching this week's Mini Page.

PAGE 1: Find Cape Hatteras on a map. Talk about the fact that the waters off the Cape are known as the "Graveyard of the Atlantic" because so many ships have sunk here. Using cardboard tubes and boxes, see if you can't reconstruct a small model of the Monitor.

PAGE 2: Super 1862 Battleships: The battle of the Monitor and the Merrimac is one of the most famous in history. Go over the story with your children. It is very interesting to note the differences in the sizes of the two ships.

PAGE 4: The problem of smoking is a big one and the temptation often starts at an early age. Discuss the health and fire hazards and why it's just not smart to smoke.

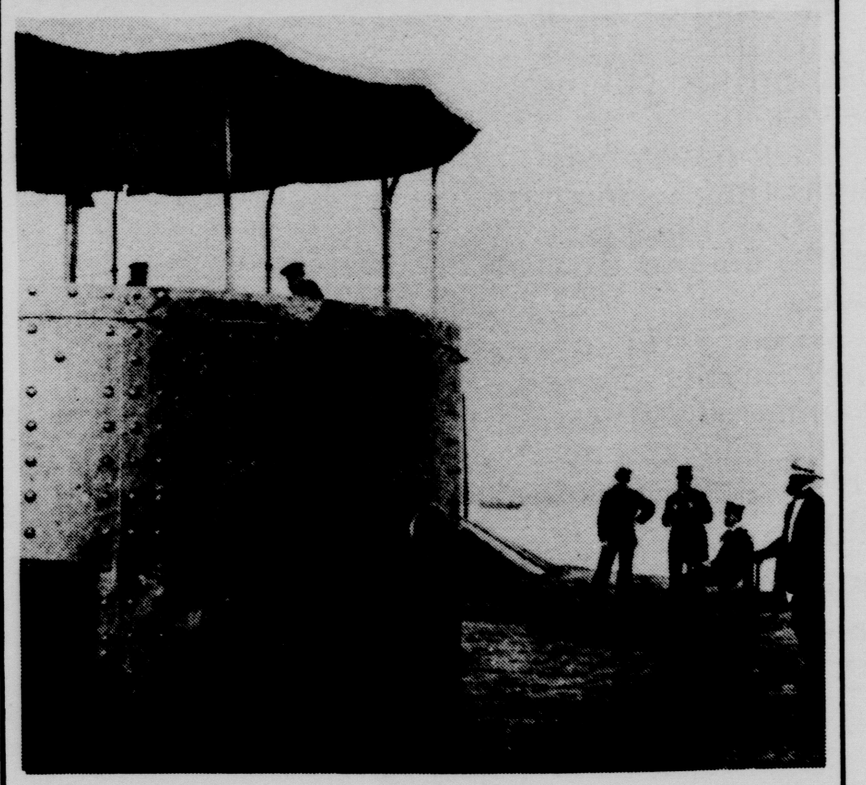
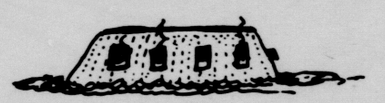
1862 Super Battleships



Near the center of the Monitor was a revolving turret that was to serve as the idea for the modern-day battleship turret. It was 9 feet high, 20 feet across and it had 9-inch-thick armor. There were two guns inside.

The Merrimac



The Confederate navy knew it was no match for the Federal ships. It came up with the idea of the first ironclad ship, The Merrimac. She was made from a Federal ship that had been sunk and raised. Below her deck was the same old steering gear that had never worked well. The top of the ship was completely changed. The slanted walls were 7 feet high and covered with 4-inch armor of steel-plate.

The Monitor

The Monitor was five times smaller than the Merrimac. The Monitor carried two guns, the Merrimac 10. The Monitor had a crew of only 58, while the Merrimac had 320. Despite the differences in size, the Monitor had an advantage because her revolving guns could fire from any angle. The Merrimac had to be moved into position to fire. The Monitor's draft (how much of her was underwater) was 10 feet. The Merrimac's was 23 feet.

The Battle

The strange ships met in battle only once, on Sunday, March 9, 1862. The battle lasted for four long hours. At one time, the ships were so close together than an active man could have jumped across. But the battle of the ironclads ended in a draw. Both ships limped away.

On May 10, 1862, the Confederates abandoned the Merrimac and set her afire in order to keep her from falling into the hands of the enemy.

The Sticky Porcupines

Porcupines have a very sticky way of defending themselves.

They have sharp quills (hairs grown together) on their tails, backs and sides.

When attacked, they strike their enemies with these quills. They are not able to shoot these quills as some people might think.

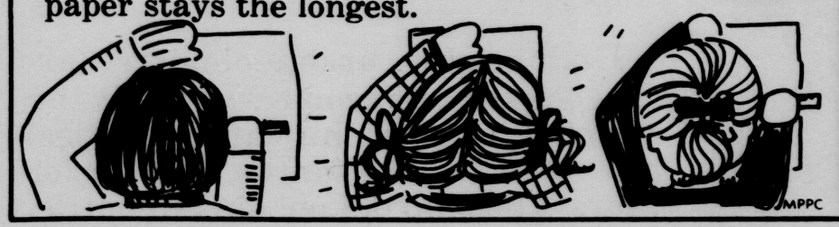
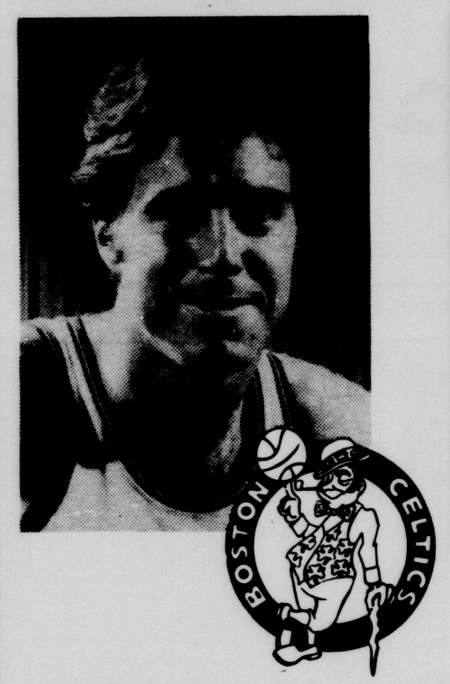
The Paper on the Wall Trick

"I can make this paper stick to the wall without using nails, glue or sticky tape."

What to do:
Hold a piece of paper against a flat wall. Size 8½x11 will do fine. Rub the side of a pencil rapidly against it while you count to 120 slowly (about 2 minutes). Now take your pencil away and let go. You might want to have a contest with several friends to see whose paper stays the longest.



Super Sport: Dave Cowens



At first, some experts thought Dave Cowens was too small to play center in the National Basketball Association.

But they soon realized they were wrong as Dave won the Rookie of the Year honors the first season, the Most Valuable Player award his second season.

Today, the hustling, 6-foot, 8-inch Boston Celtic pivotman is recognized as one of the best players in pro basketball.

Dave usually ranks among the league's top rebounders and scorers. In five seasons with the Celtics, he has a career scoring average of 19.1 per game.

Before joining the mighty Celtics, Dave was an All-American at Florida State University. Success came to Dave largely because of his tremendous dedication and willingness to work.

Dave plans to farm when he retires from pro ball. He already owns a 30-acre farm near Newport, Kentucky, where he grows Christmas trees and raises livestock.

Meet Crispus Attucks (1723?-1770)

The American colonists did not like British taxes. On March 5, 1770, they yelled and threw snowballs at the British troops. The soldiers shot and killed several people and wounded others. Sam Adams called it a "massacre."

One of the leaders of the patriots was a man called Crispus Attucks. He was killed by one of the British soldiers.

Not much is known about him. Some history writers say he was a black. Others say he was an Indian. There was a statue erected in his memory in Boston in 1888.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, May 7, the 128th day of 1976. There are 238 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, at the end of World War II in Europe, the Germans signed unconditional surrender terms at General Dwight D. Eisenhower's temporary headquarters at Rheims, France.

On this date:

In 1789, the first presidential inaugural ball was held in New York in honor of President and Mrs. George Washington.

In 1833, the German composer, Johannes Brahms, was born.

In 1915, the British liner, Lusitania, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off Ireland, with a loss of more than 1,100 lives.

In 1939, the military and political alliance known as the Rome-Berlin Axis was announced by Germany and Italy.

In 1943, Allied forces in World War II won a major victory in North Africa as Tunis and Bizerte were liberated.

In 1960, Moscow announced that an American pilot shot down over the Soviet Union, Francis Gary Powers, would be put on trial as a spy.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson proposed a treaty with the Soviet Union and other space powers outlawing military activity on the moon and denying anyone lunar sovereignty.

Five years ago: The United States removed all controls on the use of dollars in U.S. transactions with mainland China.

Thought for today: Miracles sometimes occur, but one has to work terribly hard for them — Chaim Weizmann, Zionist leader, 1874-1952.

Today in U.S. history

By The Associated Press

Today is Friday, May 7, the 128th day of 1976. There are 238 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1945, at the end of World War II in Europe, the Germans signed unconditional surrender terms at General Dwight D. Eisenhower's temporary headquarters at Rheims, France.

On this date:

In 1789, the first presidential inaugural ball was held in New York in honor of President and Mrs. George Washington.

In 1833, the German composer, Johannes Brahms, was born.

In 1915, the British liner, Lusitania, was torpedoed and sunk by a German submarine off Ireland, with a loss of more than 1,100 lives.

In 1939, the military and political alliance known as the Rome-Berlin Axis was announced by Germany and Italy.

In 1943, Allied forces in World War II won a major victory in North Africa as Tunis and Bizerte were liberated.

In 1960, Moscow announced that an American pilot shot down over the Soviet Union, Francis Gary Powers, would be put on trial as a spy.

Ten years ago: President Lyndon B. Johnson proposed a treaty with the Soviet Union and other space powers outlawing military activity on the moon and denying anyone lunar sovereignty.

Five years ago: The United States removed all controls on the use of dollars in U.S. transactions with mainland China.

Thought for today: Miracles sometimes occur, but one has to work terribly hard for them — Chaim Weizmann, Zionist leader, 1874-1952.

IRS says some millionaires still do not pay income tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five millionaires were among the more than 3,000 Americans who earned $50,000 or more in 1974 and paid no federal income tax, the Internal Revenue Service says.

The number of millionaires who got off scot free was down from seven in 1973, the IRS said.

There were 244 individuals with adjusted gross incomes of $200,000 or more who paid no taxes in 1974. In 1973 there were only 164.

In the $50,000-to-$200,000 category, 3,053 persons paid no 1974 taxes.

Meanwhile, persons in the $12,000 to $13,000 category — roughly equivalent to the $12,800 median family income for 1974 — paid $1,387 in taxes, or about 11 per cent of their adjusted income of $12,500.

The figures come from a preliminary IRS report on the 1974 tax year that was released Wednesday. It identified none of the taxpayers.

The millionaires who paid nothing were the exception, not the rule, according to the IRS. Some 1,128 persons reported adjusted gross income of more than $1 million, and on the average they paid 49.2 per cent in federal tax. In 1973, some 903 earned over $1 million.

The 244 who paid no taxes represented less than one per cent of the 31,132 taxpayers who earned over $200,000 in 1974. Likewise, the vast majority of the 836,000 persons who made between $50,000 and $200,000 paid taxes.

But the number of wealthy Americans escaping taxes may be even higher than the formal statistics indicate. Adjusted gross income does not include certain business expenses and special allowances.

MoPac refuses Feds

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Missouri Pacific Railroad Co., refuses to allow federal inspectors to look at track used by Amtrak trains, the federal government said in a complaint filed here Thursday.

The complaint, filed in U.S. District Court, said a federal administrator who monitors compliance with federal track safety standards has not been allowed, under reasonable conditions, to inspect tracks.

The government seeks an injunction against the firm and against the Texas and Pacific Railroad, which the government said is "an integral part" of the Missouri Pacific system.

The complaint said Missouri Pacific owns tracks between Kansas City and Laredo, Tex., via St. Louis and Dallas-Fort Worth, Tex.

The complaint said officials had been told they would get permission to inspect only under conditions the government said "constitute an impermissible burden on the exercise of lawful authority."
